

the navy had no consideration for me I would have none for them."

"Do you believe the whole navy compartment is corrupt?" asked the judge.

"No, but some are corrupt," she responded.

For three hours and a half the young woman faced with her distinguished inquisitor. After witnessing the experience of the august tribunal in endeavoring to cope with a woman on the last word, Col. E. H. Smith, counsel for Capt. Foley, when the court had made a defendant, announced that he did not care to cross examine.

The court politely rose as Mrs. Lansdowne was called to the stand during the morning session. She made a striking figure in her widow's weeds amid the blue and gold uniforms of the court and the naval officers filling the room, a tall, slender, girlish figure, modestly apparelled.

Objects To "This Person."

No sooner was Mrs. Lansdowne seated than Maj. Leonard was heard exclaiming:

"May it please the court, I object to the presence here of this person who—"

Then it was noted that Maj. Leonard was not referring to Mrs. Lansdowne but to Davies, late of Wisconsin, who has been established in Washington since the Wilson administration, when he was chairman of the federal trade commission.

Davies now became vocal. Clutching the back of his client's chair, he proceeded in a shouting tone something like this:

"And I insist on remaining here to represent my client. She has rights that not even this court can deny her—"

Admiral Restores Order.

Admiral Jones' face flushed purple with indignation. "Objection sustained," the admiral barked out impatiently, motioning to the marine sergeant on duty to put this intruder out. The guard started to hustle Davies away, detaching him from the chair, to which he clung. Davies went unwilling, declaring:

"You can fine men for contempt, you can throw me in jail, but—"

The rest was lost in the general commotion. Admiral Jones restored order and then, after whispering with his colleagues, explained to the tone and manner of the interruption. Now he would like to hear the law on the question of allowing counsel for witnesses. It appeared that there was not much, if any, law on the subject. Allowing counsel for witnesses in naval court just isn't done.

"May I be permitted to submit that—"

It was Davies, who had been put quite out of the room, but was leaning back, his countenance white with rage. "I would like to be heard in common justice to this witness," he shouted.

"Please wait the ruling or be excluded," commanded Admiral Jones. "O, I'll submit, I'll submit," exclaimed the lawyer as the marine sergeant made a move to collar him once more.

Then there was a recess in which the judge's advocates ascertained what Davies wanted to say. The lawyer, the judge's advocate later advised the court, wanted to say that his client needed counsel because this Shennandoah disaster investigation had developed into a question of whether Capt. Foley had committed a crime or Mrs. Lansdowne was telling the truth. The court finally ruled that the witness could not have counsel.

"I want to file an objection to this court proceeding in defiance of the rights of the witness," shouted Davies. "There is no court outside of Russia that would be guilty of such persecution."

The court ignored this interruption, and Maj. Leonard began to examine the witness, who said that she wished to read a statement which she held in her hand. Maj. Leonard objected to her use of a memorandum, and Davies burst forth with this:

"Then I advise the witness not to testify."

"Please keep quiet or be put out," Admiral Jones sternly admonished. Mrs. Lansdowne then stated that she declined to testify. Admiral Jones asked her if she understood this was a matter entirely different from the previous inquiry into the Shennandoah disaster.

"I protest, I protest," Davies shouted.

"Please remove Mr. Davies," commanded the admiral, and the marine sergeant, seating upon the lawyer, thrust him through the crowd of spectators and through the door.

Widow Changes Mind.

Then Maj. Leonard, just as a routine formality, of course, asked the witness her name and place of residence, and before she knew it Mrs. Lansdowne, who had said she would not testify, was testifying unhesitatingly, frankly, and voluminously.

Mrs. Lansdowne described the call made on her by Capt. Foley two days before she was to testify the first time in the Shennandoah inquiry. He came

HIGH COURT ORDERS COL MITCHELL TO PAY MORE ALIMONY

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Col. William Mitchell's fight to keep from paying his divorced wife an additional $2,500 a year alimony was put today when the state supreme court upheld the decision of the Milwaukee Circuit court ordering the air service officer to raise his former wife's allowance from $4,500 to $7,000.

Mitchell's appeal to the higher court was based on the ground that he received only $4,665 a year from the Mitchell estate and that since his demotion from brigadier general to his present rank his pay was insufficient to allow the alimony increase. His former wife has an income of her own from an estate worth $175,000, his attorney testified.

with his wife to the house of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. William Beverly Mason, with whom the widow now lives.

"There was about half an hour of conversation which bored me terribly," said Mrs. Lansdowne. "Then I asked Capt. Foley what the court was going to do to me. He asked me what I was going to do to the court. I merely had wanted to know the procedure, whether I was to kiss the book or raise my hand. He said he would like to know what I was going to tell the court."

"Let's rehearse it right now," he said.

Conversation with Foley.

"No, I'll tell it my own way. Capt. Foley said I must not say my husband had objected to making political flights. He said I must not call them political flights, because they were not that. He said these flights were made to let the taxpayers see their property."

"You don't send battleships out west for the taxpayers to see. He said battleships could not be sent out west for nonmilitary duty."

"Yes, and it seems you couldn't send the Shennandoah either. I made it even stronger. I said the navy is so stupid it had to be proved to them that the Shennandoah could not be sent to the storm season."

In the midst of Capt. Foley's call her uncle, she said, went out, but called her into the hall and cautioned her to beware of the officer.

"What did your uncle say?" said Maj. Leonard.

"Don't Tell Him a Damned Thing."

"My uncle said: 'Don't tell him a damned thing; he's not here for your good.' Mrs. Lansdowne shot back amid the laughter of the gallery."

Capt. Foley asked, she said, as if he were "a perfect fool," and she decided to pretend to be one, "for two can play that game as well as one." Her aunt, she testified, spoke afterward of Foley's attempt to influence her testimony and had remarked that "the stupidity of Secretary Wilbur was pitiful."

"Why did your aunt say that?" the witness was asked.

"Why, because he had given me the lie," said the witness in a tone of rising anger. "I said my husband had been sent on a political flight over his protest and Secretary Wilbur denied it without looking into the matter. Why, Capt. Foley himself admitted that the secretary had been 'rather hasty.'"

The next day Capt. Foley sent her a memorandum which she regarded as a suggestion of what he wanted her to state to the court. She was incensed thereby and destroyed the memorandum and wrote her own statement. Maj. Leonard submitted a copy of the memorandum, the correctness of which Mrs. Lansdowne verified. The memorandum followed:

"Immediately subsequent to the loss of the U. S. S. Shennandoah I felt it my duty to say for my husband things which he was no longer in a position to say for himself; that he was opposed to sending the Shennandoah on the midwestern flight during the thunderstorm period and had protested so doing to the navy department. My husband regarded the Shennandoah as a man of war. He was ready at all times to take the ship out for military maneuvers, but was opposed to using her for nonmilitary duty."

"Leave It to the Court."

"Had I known at the time I accepted the invitation of the court to appear before it that the correspondence in the case would have been introduced into the record of the court as it since has I would not have accepted the invitation of the court to appear."

"As things now are I am not only willing but would prefer to leave the entire matter to the judgment of the court in which I have every confidence."

Mrs. Lansdowne admitted that the only statement in this memorandum to which she took exception is that "her husband was ready, at all times to take the ship out for military maneuvers but was opposed to using her for nonmilitary duty." She said if she had given such testimony she would have made her husband out an ignorant fool. Even on military maneuvers he was not ready to go at all times, regardless of the weather, and the use of the phrase "nonmilitary duty," she said, was camouflage for "political flights."

"Don't you know that it is the duty of the judge advocates to interview witnesses as to their prospective testimony?" asked Maj. Leonard.

"No," said Mrs. Lansdowne. "I would like to surprise you if you learned that to be the fact?"

"It would,"

Maj. Leonard then read the regulations requiring judge advocates to make preliminary examinations of witnesses.

"I can see that his call was within the line of duty," came the instant comment from the quick-witted witness, "but his argument to sway my testimony was not. And I should like to ask the present judge advocate—"

Mrs. Lansdowne leaned forward, rested an elbow on the table and innocently gazed at her inquisitor.

"I should like to ask you if this is your duty under the regulations, why you have not interviewed two other witnesses I know of?" She was referring to her aunt and uncle, presumably.

"I always try to learn by experience," rejoined the judge advocate amid laughter at his good-natured admission that Mrs. Lansdowne had scored.

At the close of her testimony Mrs. Lansdowne was given permission to read the statement excluded at the beginning. It was to the effect that she refused to testify, which she now read with a burst of laughter, unless she could have the benefit of counsel.

"Have you felt the need of counsel?" asked Maj. Leonard.

"Very often," said Mrs. Lansdowne, looking hard at the court and the judge advocate, whereupon she was dismissed.

DRAW PICTURE OF CITY'S STRIDES IN THINGS SPIRITUAL

Church, School Leaders Outline Progress.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"If Christ Came to Chicago Today" might have been the theme to which the church leaders in Chicago, education and civic affairs addressed themselves yesterday at the Chicago Association of Commerce conference at the Hotel La Salle.

This was a mighty canvas, set against the tawdry picture which the late William H. Stead painted of haunting vice and crime twenty years ago. In beauty and service and things of the spirit, it was shown, there has been a growth comparable with bank balances and great buildings. Still we lift eyes to the dawn light of these essentials of true growth.

The discussions may be outlined as follows:

THE CHURCHES.
Clifford W. Barnes, president of the Chicago Church federation, was one of the speakers. A report from eighteen denominations showed an increase in resources during the last twenty-one years of $64,000,000, a net increase in membership of 168,399, with 731 new activities reported by the churches. Broader touch with the community, the minimizing of the dividing denominational walls, the disappearance of intolerance, bigotry and sectarian jealousy, were noted by this speaker.

Mrs. C. J. Quillen, general secretary of the 28th International Eucharistic congress, said that he had watched the breakup of the old leviathan, and that if Christ came today He would find a scattered people, but still being driven. The Catholic churches have increased from 250 to 308, the 10,000 children in parochial schools to 17,000.

Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai congregation, finds the churches paying the highest dividends on earth. At Sinai temple, 13,000 persons a week are visitors, 50 per cent of them not Jews. Religion is not a creed but a way of life, and they are seeking to make brotherhood a practice and to prepare and prevent rather than to repair and repent. A staff of 58 monks to complement the work of the pulpit.

HEALTH.
Dr. Herman M. Burdison, commissioner of health, said that if Christ came today He would find Chicago the healthiest great city because of the fine factory buildings and the living regime. But we might have "a devil of a time" using Him because of the smoke that makes us a pesthole for pneumonia," he added. Chicago's air is impure and we need more smoke engineers to teach methods of firing boilers.

EDUCATION.
Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, president emeritus of the University of Chicago, said the program of twenty years needs a foundation for what he is confident will become the foremost educational center of the world. He told of the growth of Northwestern university, the University of Chicago, the schools of law and medicine, the

Airmen Forced to Fly in Face of Death by Non-Flying Higher Ups They Testify

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—"We offer this in mitigation, or in extenuation. We offer it in mitigation."

With that defiance, the lawyers in the Mitchell court martial today again took their case leagues away from the original question as to whether Col. William Mitchell has been guilty of insubordination's conduct of the air service. The evidence here not at all upon the colonel. His name was never mentioned.

Reed Landis Testifies.
Five witnesses, including Maj. Reed Landis of Chicago, gave testimony, the purpose of which was to sustain Mitchell's charges of maladministration of the air service.

The most arresting testimony along that line was given late in the day by Capt. Willis H. Hale, commanding a bomb squadron at Langley field, Virginia.

"But, general," the witness testified that he had said to Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding the Second Corps area, "such a formation will be extremely dangerous."

The remark was made relative to department instructions that planes participating in night tests at Camp Davis last July should fly in a formation which, so Capt. Hale said, was "unheard of in the air service."

public schools, De Paul and Loyola, the technical school, art and music schools. Our dappers, he said, are no worse than their grandmothers and if we let them alone they, too, will be good grandmothers some day.

MEDICAL.
Dr. N. P. Colwell, secretary of the Council of Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical association, charted the great improvements in medical education and said that the higher standards in schools and hospitals must be supported. There is an unequal distribution of physicians between city and country and hospitals should be built outside the city.

LAW.
Urban A. Lavery, chairman of the Chicago Bar association, said the advancement of the law has kept pace with the high medical standards, and urged a thorough general education in addition to the law. There is a direct ratio between education and honesty in the profession, he said.

MUSEUMS.
Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of geology at the Field Museum of Natural History, told of the practical and educational work being done in schools and with professional men. He questioned whether Chicago was making the most of this $25,000,000 asset.

ART.
Lorado Taft, sculptor, gave the old Thoreau warning lest we take an important means to an unimportant end. He envisioned the country children who look with longing eyes for beauty in Chicago. A city filled with selfish, morose people has no power. Affection for the city is the important thing. Art explains life and gives a hint of eternity. The skyline from the boulevard bridge shows an outline of true art that is lovable, and there are other signs and practical beginnings.

He said he asked the general so to inform the war department and to urge that the instructions be changed, but that Gen. Summerall replied: "There already have been too many requests made to the war department for changes in these instructions and I do not wish to make any more. You will have to fly as outlined."

Capt. Hale said that he made two protests, both to no avail. The instructions were carried out. There were no catastrophes, but a collision was so narrowly averted that he felt he had been fully justified in protesting.

Landis Supports Mitchell.
Maj. Landis, chairman of the American Legion aeronautics committee, testified in support of Col. Mitchell's charge that anti-aircraft guns are an almost negligible factor in warfare, but that bureaucrats without flying experience persistently give congressional committees and the American public "false and misleading information" as to their effectiveness.

"We were conscious," Maj. Landis testified relative to his flying experience in the world war, "that anti-aircraft guns were being fired at us, but that was only during the first few days when we were green."

Tells of Flying School.
Testifying on his experience as head of the advanced flying school at San Antonio, Capt. Hickman said: "We have had considerable difficulty in convincing the adjutant general that every man sent there can't be taught to fly and that he will either kill himself in training or soon after."

MUSIC.
Felix Borowski, former president of the Chicago Musical college, said the Theodore Thomas orchestra had distinguished Europe as to Indians and buffaloes on the streets of Chicago, and that the opera and the orchestra have made this one of the great musical centers. Music students now are coming here from abroad. Our municipality, however, has stood aloof. It should aid this movement in a practical way.

LIBRARIES.
Carl Roden, librarian of the Chicago public library, said there are 55,000 volumes a day now in circulation and the library had decided to build from three to five new branches a year at a cost of about $75,000 each, until at least forty more have been made available. In ten years no city will have a better library service.

SOCIAL AGENCIES.
Willoughby G. Walling, president of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, said there are some 300 social agencies, and that about $50,000,000 is spent each year. Of this more than $5,000,000 is raised by contributions. The rest is from endowment and tax funds.

UNIVERSITIES.
President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university said that progress is not in buildings or endowments, but in the direction schools are going. Culture may be refined selfishness, the professions may exploit, science may

but that was only during the first few days when we were green."

Find Condemned Plans.
Maj. Horace M. Hickman, who was an expert adviser on aviation in the Harding disarrangement conference, was asked:

"Do you know of a case in which a naval pilot was allowed to fly in a condemned plane?"

"I do."

No further answers to that question were permitted.

Capt. Hickman said that as head of advanced schools of aviation for officers he had made recommendations "every six months" to the adjutant general for the introduction of physical, mental and psychological tests that would "make military aviation safer."

"With what result?" Mr. Reid asked.

"I didn't get any help," he replied.

PUBLIC EDUCATION.
William McAndrew, superintendent of Chicago public schools, said that Chicago faced the problem of having more children than school seats, but that too much emphasis must not be placed on buildings. Intelligent remedies are being applied to the defects of public schooling everywhere. These are making reading "thinking rather than talking," good writing and spelling, self-checking in arithmetic, and giving every child a desire to do for the general welfare, a sense of accomplishment of worthwhile things.

STEEL NEEDS SHIPS.
Industrial Chicago sang a melody of steel and waterways yesterday as it took inventory of the city while commemorating the twenty-first birthday of the Association of Commerce. On this second day of stock taking the future of the steel industry in Chicago's empire was linked definitely with the two inland waterway projects —the lakes to gulf route and the St. Lawrence to the sea.

Both routes must be completed to make the final chapter of Chicago's ambitious story of steel the city's commercial and industrial leaders were told at the Buckstone hotel where the session was devoted to a survey of the metal trades and allied industries.

H. C. Gardner, chairman of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, explained Chicago's need of that route.

"We need both routes," he said. "Let no one tell you we don't. That is just insidious propaganda of our enemies. We must bring the coast line in."

He showed that 5,500,000 tons of shipping were sent between salt water and the lakes in 1924 with the existing facilities of the Welland canal.

"That alone shows the demand," he declared.

Third of All Products.
Franklin Hobbs, the statistician who prepared the whole Association of Commerce survey from 54,000 sheets of commercial and industrial reports, said that of the $3,000,000,000 of manufactured products within the city limits of Chicago, more than one-third were of metal.

Dr. Ulysses S. Grant, professor of geology at Northwestern university, said that the iron ranges of the Lake Superior district and other ore producing sections accessible to Chicago have an ore reserve that will last the Chicago steel industry another seven to five years and perhaps longer through the use of low cost molten content than is now being used.

HULL PLEADS FOR CHICAGO TO GULF DEEP WATERWAY

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Representative William E. Hull in an address here today urged citizens of Illinois to take a greater interest in inland waterways and pointed out the benefits to industry which would accrue through cheap water transportation.

"Twenty-five years ago I began to advocate deep waterways," Mr. Hull said. "I have always been impressed with the fact that we were losing great opportunities by not improving the Illinois river and making it a channel through which the boats could travel from Chicago to New Orleans."

"When I first went to congress I introduced a bill for this purpose, and I am still advocating a bill to make a channel 200 feet wide and 5 feet deep from Utica to Gratiot."

He then told of a recent trip to South America, where he saw the advantages of cheap water transport.

WRING STORY OF COURTSHIP FROM UNWILLING KIP

Al Jolson Furnishes Fun at Annulment Trial.

sel. Her hair was exposed, black, crinkly—Negroid. A moment before Rhinelander, in answer to a group of variously phrased questions, had insisted that he had not believed his wife was a Negro.

"Did she look the same at the time of your marriage as she does now?" Davis demanded, with unmistakable meaning. Rhinelander said that she did.

Rhinelander, although embarrassed, was forced by Davis to go into details of his first essay at lovemaking with Alice. The youth flushed deeply. He told of putting his arm about the girl and of kissing her. Davis pressed him grimly. He forced the witness to tell detail after detail, reticent that he would never have pressed into such matters had not the plaintiff's counsel read the letters of Mrs. Rhinelander.

Wrote to Negro "In-Laws."

The first introduction of a communication from Rhinelander came in the form of two postcards. They were introduced after Rhinelander had sworn that he did not want to be "on terms of intimacy with colored people."

The cards had been sent to Emily and Robert Brooks, sister and brother-in-law of Alice—the latter a Negro with less white admixture than is in the Jones family—addressed them as "Dear Em and Bob."

He admitted under further questioning that he had told Brooks to address him as "Len" and that he called Brooks "Bob."

Mr. Davis then wrung the admission that there were four misstatements in the bill of particulars and then turned to Kip's early love making.

"When did you fall in love with Alice?" he asked.

"Very shortly after I met her."

"You pursued Alice, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"You were not making love to the girl without honest marriage in view, were you?"

"No."

"Within two weeks you and she confessed your love to each other?"

"Yes."

"With marriage in view?"

"Not exactly."

"Why, then, did you make love to her?"

"Because I liked her."

"You weren't so innocent when you met Alice?"

"Yes, I was."

"You made love to Alice. You were not innocent about that, so just how did you make love to Alice?"

"After some more fencing the early embarrassed witness faltered that his first act was to put his arm around her."

"What was the next?"

Flushing a deep scarlet, Rhinelander, speaking with great difficulty, said: "I kissed her."

Told Her of Love.

"When did you tell your loved her?"

"Two or three weeks later."

"When were your acts toward Alice not those of a gentleman?"

"My acts were gentlemanly until the Marie Antoinette."

"Before you went to the hotel, you had done nothing but hold her hand and kiss her?"

"That was all."

"Had you ever been intimate with Alice Rhinelander before going to the Marie Antoinette?"

"No."

Mr. Davis then introduced a letter addressed to "Dearest Alice" on Sept. 28, 1921.

"What did you mean by writing 'much love' when you did not love her?"

"I was fond of her."

Mr. Davis then read a letter Rhinelander wrote on Oct. 7, 1921, reproaching her for not being in when he called and asking her to be "real nice" the next time they met.

"What did you mean by saying, 'I you'll be real nice, I'll let you drive."

"I meant caring."

"Then you whom Judge Mills painted as innocent, were trying to put the sex idea into the mind of a girl you had known only two weeks?"

"Well, I was innocent—morally."

"You knew what you were after?"

"There were no thoughts of marriage?"

"No, no thoughts of marriage."

Asked Her to Wedding.

Rhinelander explained that the wedding he urged Alice to attend was that of his sister.

"Did she attend?"

"No."

"Didn't she tell you she could not be at home with all those society people?"

"She may have."

"And all this time you were trying to make her fall for you. You were holding yourself up as a big man."

"No."

"What do you call it when a man puts evil thoughts into a girl's mind?"

when he does not intend to marry her? That's deception, isn't it?"

"No, I don't think so."

"You don't call telling a girl you love her when you merely want to be intimate with her deception?"

Infatuated with Her.

"I did love her. I was infatuated with her."

"Did you really love the girl in September when you wrote that first letter?"

"I was fond of her."

Mr. Davis then introduced a letter signed "Your affectionate daddy, Leonard."

"At the time you wrote this letter were you in love with her?" he asked.

"I was getting more infatuated with her every day."

"Did you have any idea then you were going to marry her?"

"No, I did not then."

Kip was still on the stand when court adjourned.

IN JAIL, LOSES SUIT AGAINST LOEB, LEOPOLD

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Unable to appear in the Circuit court here because of his imprisonment in an Iowa jail, the suit of Charles Ream, former taxicab driver of Chicago, against Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, slayers of Robert Franks, was ordered dismissed today by Judge Frederick A. Hill.

Ream charged Loeb and Leopold with having robbed him of certain glands. He demanded $100,000 damages.

Attorneys for Ream urged a continuance, but the court refused on the grounds that they must have known Ream could not be present today, but they asked last month that the case be set for trial. Ream is said to have several months yet to serve in Iowa.

Berlin Scientist Meets an Affable Stranger.

Dr. Fritz Meyer-Bolin, scientist, who came from Berlin to the United States to study economic conditions, purchased $1,500 worth of information yesterday from two confidence men.

Monday night, as he was sitting in the lobby of the La Salle hotel, a snappy, well dressed man about 60 years old approached him and suggested that they step out for the evening.

The scientist, who was tired of investigating, thought well of the idea. They toured the cabarets and spent about $100, with the 60 year old steppe paying his full share of the expenses.

He suggested as they parted in the wee hours that they'd get the money back. That, too, was agreeable to the Herr Doktor. Yesterday his pleasant mood led him to the vicinity of the Michigan avenue bridge, where they met a third man. In the lee of one of the bridge columns they began to match pennies.

"Here's where we get our money back," whispered the doctor's friend.

They didn't. The stranger, who was introduced to the scientists as Smith, or Jones, or maybe it was Robinson—he can't remember which—won steadily. He took $1,500 from the 60 year old gentleman. The latter borrowed from the doctor until the latter's loss was $1,500.

Then the game ended and the first hand of Dr. Meyer-Bolin promised to send the money to the hotel. Dr. von Smith, after thinking over the scientific aspects of the matter, called in Just John McVeigh of the detective bureau.

bound street car. Of course he didn't know it was Durkin.

In the early part of his hideouts Durkin spent his time in the Englewood district. Last week he is known to have been in Cicero. This led, yesterday to the questioning of a number of Cicero gangsters in the federal building. It is not known what advance was made by the investigators but the Cicero witnesses were released.

Nurse Examined Neighborhood.
One of the swift sallies by detectives from the bureau last night was made in the vicinity of 19th street and 50th avenue, Cicero. A neighbor had reported the coming and going of a nurse. The police developed the theory that Durkin may have required special treatment and have managed the importation of the nurse. Squad members ransacked the building from cellar to roof, but without result.

All physicians and hospitals and drug stores have been asked to cooperate and police stations have been directed to give special attention to calls from such sources.

Among those being watched in connection with the case is Mrs. Harriet Galow, cousin of Durkin, who has been identified as the woman who dropped Durkin's coats and his suicide letter on the Michigan avenue bridge. The detective bureau heads believe she obtained these coats from Durkin's hiding place in Cicero and for that reason kept a strict watch on all automobiles passing to that suburb.

BEATS MURDER CHARGE, BUT HE'S PRISONER STILL

Jurors in the courtroom of Judge John P. McGorty yesterday apparently were not satisfied to convict Bernard Papke for murder on identification by a single witness and accordingly returned a verdict of not guilty. The jury was out several hours. Another jury previously found him guilty on the evidence of the same witness in a robbery case and Papke is serving a term of from ten years to life in the penitentiary on that charge.

Papke was on trial yesterday for the murder of Archibald Murchie, who lived in Vancouver, B. C., who was killed in the drug store of Samuel Loeff, 3767 Southport avenue. On Feb. 26, 1925, Loeff was robbed of $140 and upon his identification Papke was convicted of robbery with a gun.

$2,000,000 FIRE DESTROYS DOCKS IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Nov. 17.—(AP)—

Fire which broke out on the Mississippi river docks tonight caused damage estimated at more than $2,000,000 before it was believed to have been brought under control.

Fanned by high winds, the flames threatened millions of dollars in coffee and other merchandise stored temporarily on the docks. The wholesale and business district of the city was for a time believed to be threatened.

The flames originated in a warehouse and within ten minutes had spread rapidly over a five block section of the water front.

One ship, a freighter, was moored at the dock where the flames were first discovered, but was saved by being cut loose and towed down the river.

FRANK L. SMITH, MCKINLEY RIVAL, TELLS PLATFORM

BY PARKE BROWN.

In an unusual document, Col. Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Republican state committee, declared yesterday the principles on which he bases his candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States senator, the groundwork of his battle against Senator William B. McKinley.

debts, consumption of wealth in case of war, a protective tariff and aid for the farmer—but Smith's general statement to the voters covered broader grounds.

Plea for Middle West.
It was a plea for the middle west and for Illinois as the heart of the middle west.

"We of the middle west have faith in the middle west," read his statement. We believe the Mississippi valley is the vitals of the nation. We believe the standard of living of our immediate people best represents the standard of living the nation is trying to achieve.

"In industry, husbandry, and commerce we have the bulk—in variety and in volume—of the nation. In blood our people represent more truly than any other geographic divisions of the country, I think, the entire people of the United States.

"We are just about the average. We speak with the true voice of America. Therefore it seems to me that the Republican party next April should be the first of all middle western without exception.

any other state, all the essentials which make the middle west so important in the nation, including the greatest and most reliable Republican majorities at elections.

"So I think the second demand of the Republican voters ought to be that their candidate for senator be an Illinoisan as firmly and faithfully as he is a middle westerner."

In the same manner—again different from the stereotyped plank—Col. Smith discussed his attitude with reference to foreign relations.

Views on World Court.
"To begin, the very essence of sound middle west Republicanism," he said, "is, it seems to me, that the United States will best fulfill its own destiny and best serve civilization by remaining an independent nation, unhampered by obligations to mix in the politics of the eastern hemisphere."

"The middle west, I think, will insist that before the United States shall enter the so-called world court it first should be made certain that membership in that court will in no degree deprive this nation of the free exercise of its own sovereign powers or limit its freedom of decision upon any question, foreign or domestic, wherein the interests of the nation, as such, are involved.

"Of course, it can be said we mixed in affairs outside our own hemisphere once. Maybe we shall again. None can tell. But if we do, and when we do, let it be by volition and not by contract. In that way we can serve the right, as we see it at the time, and we shall not have to go to war merely to keep a bargain."

Mr. Smith's attitude in reference to foreign debt settlements also was clear.

"It is a perversion of human nature," he said "that to dodge a debt engenders hatred in the debtor. Nations are only organized human nature. As long as our debtors dodge their obligations they will find excuses to hate us. When they have settled their debts they will find reasons to like us. We want them to like us."

Col. Smith said he thought a sound policy of national economy left the way open for such necessities as a new Chicago postoffice and continued:

"Coupled with, and largely dependent on wise economy, is the question of taxation.

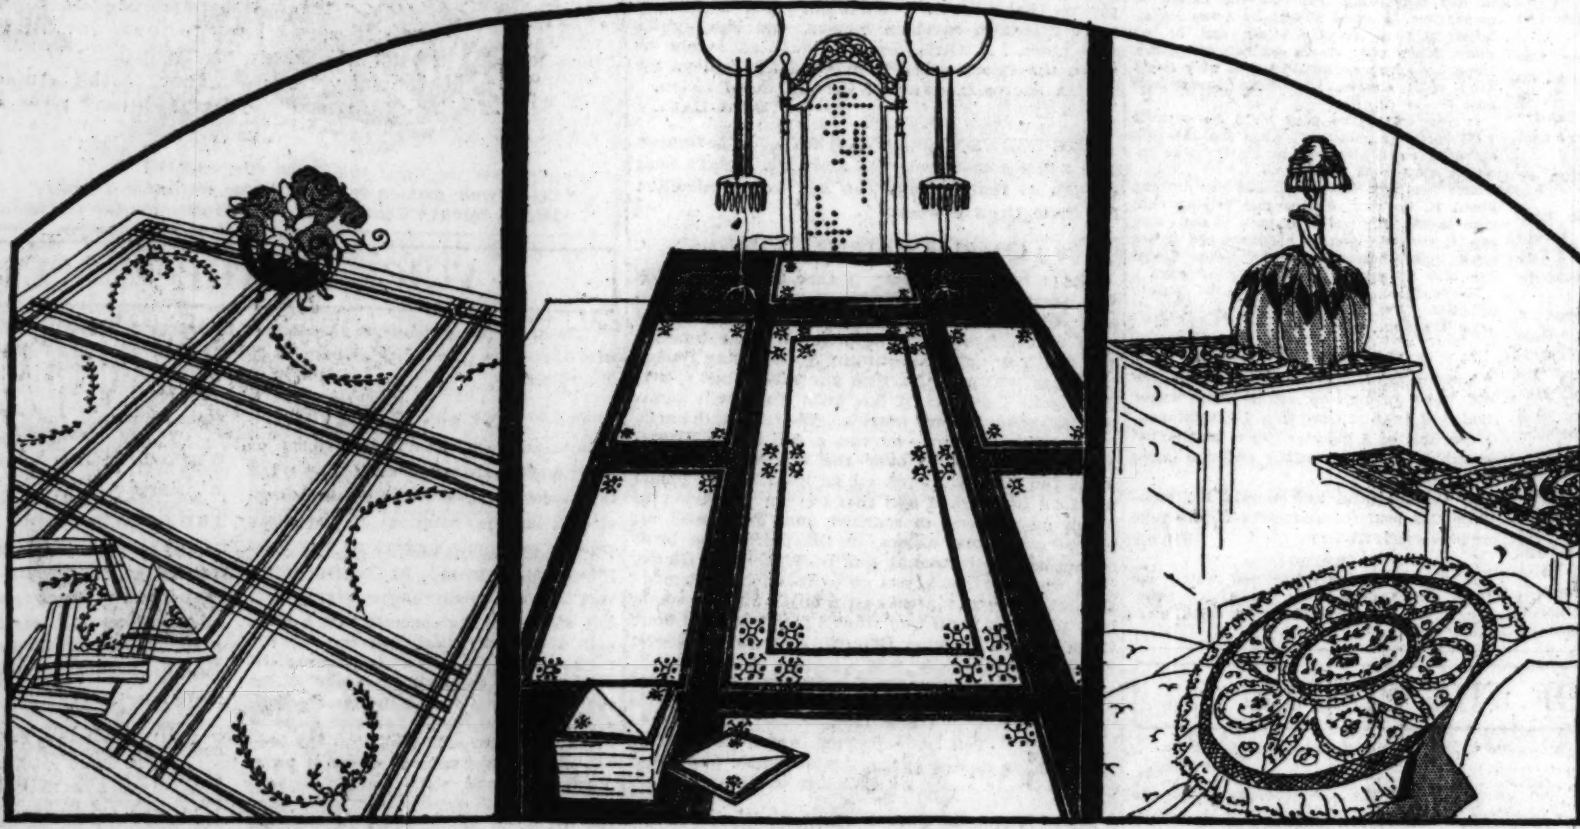

exemption and reduce the normal tax as low as the budget will stand without putting the surtax so high that enterprise and worthy effort will be unduly penalized, seems to me a good general working rule. Also as part of the program of economy and tax reduction should be, I think, the most rapid practicable liquidation of the national debt."

For State Rights, Too.
Returning to his attitude in reference to Illinois and the middle west, Col. Smith continued:

"If I shall go to the senate, it also will be to urge for the middle west and Illinois a square deal in national legislation. By that I mean that it will be my effort to prevent the invasion of the inherent rights of the state by Washington: its right to legislate for its own people in things which peculiarly concern their welfare.

"I believe in the national constitution. Therefore, I believe the states should be protected in the rights reserved to them therein and that intrusion by the national government in state affairs is not good Republican doctrine. Certainly it is not good middle west or good Illinois doctrine."

TWO WOMEN'S WILLS DISPOSE
OF MILLION EACHMrs. F. C. Bartlett's and Miss J. A. Hopkins' Filed

The wills of two women, both socially prominent in Chicago, disposing of estates valued at approximately $1,000,000 each, were filed yesterday before Assistant Probate Judge Frederick W. Elliott.

Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett, the former Helen Birch, a musician, died Oct. 25. The death of Miss Julia A. Hopkins, sister of the late John P. Hopkins, former mayor of Chicago, occurred a week later.

Mrs. Bartlett made several bequests to her friends, but the main part of the estate was divided among members of her family. Her father, Attorney Hugh T. Birch, will receive $400,000. Her husband, Frederick C. Bartlett, artist, was bequeathed the same amount. A stepson, Frederick C. Bartlett Jr., a student at Harvard, received $200,000.

Paintings for Art Institute.

A collection of paintings known as the Birch-Bartlett collection was given to the Art Institute.

Miss Harriet Monroe, editor of "Poetry," was given $5,000; Mrs. Helen Lord Hasler, Lake Forest, $10,000; Mrs. Arthur Bissell, 50 East Schiller street, $10,000; Mrs. Edwin Ryerson, 232 East Walton place, $5,000.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, was bequeathed $5,000. Bequests of $10,000 were made to Mrs. Catherine Eddy Beveridge, Beverly, Mass.; Spencer Hurst, London, England; and Margaret Coy, Buffalo. Bequests of $5,000 were given to Albert J. Beveridge, Beverly, Mass., and to Mrs. Thomas Drury, 4631 North Troy street. Two servants, Catharine Burns and Jefferson Lockett, were given $1,000 each.

Mrs. Bartlett was the second wife of the artist. She was married to him in 1919. She and her husband spent much of the time in the Orient. She was 43 years old at the time of her death.

Three sisters and a niece will share the estate of Miss Hopkins. Each will receive approximately a quarter of a million.

The heirs are Miss Adele A. Hopkins, and Miss Kate Hopkins, 4845 Ellis avenue, and Mrs. Josephine McCormick, 4940 Greenwood avenue, the sisters. Mrs. Frances McCormick McGuire, 4822 Ellis avenue, the niece, will share equally with them.

Publisher's Son Arrested;

Fails to Appear for Trial

Lloyd Udell, son of B. B. Udell, Willmetts publisher, was arrested on a warrant issued by Justice Mickey yesterday when he failed to appear in court to answer a speeding charge brought against him at 11:30 Monday night. Young Udell will appear in court tomorrow.

How Skinny Kids
Gain Needed Weight

Weak, undernourished, underweight boys and girls who are peevish, fretful and sickly need McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Cod Liver Oil would do just as well, but what parent would be so cruel as to give them the horrible, nasty tasting, ill smelling stuff, when sugar coated cod liver oil tablets made by McCoy's Laboratories of New York are as easy to take as candy and won't upset their delicate stomachs.

There's more vitamins of the first class in cod liver oil than in anything else and for that reason thin, scraggly, sickly children commence to live up and take on good healthy flesh after McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets have been taken for just a few days.

Be sure and ask any druggist for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets, if you want your delicate children to become strong, robust and active.

For grown-ups they are just as wonderful—one woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks. 60 tablets 60 cents and if they don't put 5 pounds of good firm flesh on any thin man or woman in 30 days, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

McCoy's Laboratory New York City.

BUILDERS VOTE TO RESIST WAGE BOOST EFFORTS

There is nothing in the building out look for the coming year to warrant wage increases and any effort to boost wage scales in next spring's agreements will be resisted by the contractors of the country, according to a resolution adopted unanimously yesterday by the National Association of Building Trades Employers.

Building contractors from practically every large city in the country attended the one day conference at the Congress hotel. The contractors discussed the proposed five day week for building workers and declared it was unsound and that it is being set up for the purpose of creating an artificial labor shortage.

Demand Full Production. Restrictions on the individual production of building workers was condemned, the builders pointing out that the failure of labor to give a full measure of production is an imposition upon the employer and public. Such practice, it was said, creates a menace to the future of the building industry.

Each Business Transacted. The conference lasted only five hours, but veteran contractors said there was more business transacted at yesterday's meeting than is ordinarily accomplished in a convention of two weeks.

Contractors from New York, Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Springfield, Mass., Omaha, Pittsburgh, Grand Rapids, Mich., Rochester, N. Y., Springfield, Ill., Akron, O., Indianapolis, Hammond, Ind., Milwaukee, Cincinnati, Madison, Wis., Des Moines, Houston, Tex., New Orleans, Memphis and other cities made reports to the conference on local conditions.

With a few exceptions they all reported they expected the 1926 building program to be as large or larger than the one of this year. The consensus placed the 1926 volume as being within 5 or 10 per cent larger or smaller than the construction volume of 1925.

Berlin Gives Countess Year in Prison for Theft

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The Countess Bothmer, a member of an old, aristocratic family, who moved in the smartest social set, was sentenced early this morning to a year's imprisonment for theft despite the efforts of her attorney, who spoke for eight hours in his final plea in her defense. The countess stole small sums of money, rugs, and valuable antiques from friends whom she visited over week-ends and at teas.

10 MILES OF ROAD TO BE BUILT BY COUNTY IN 1926

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

More than 80 miles of 30-foot concrete highways will be built by Cook county in 1926.

The cash is available, plans are being prepared, and formal action by the county board is expected within thirty days. While the county commissioners have a reputation in deeds of good roads, most of them are anxious for an unusually large amount of mileage next year.

County Superintendent of Highways George Quinlan, with agents of the federal government, made an exhaustive study of highway traffic and on the basis of the enormous amount of information obtained has selected 98 miles of route which would contribute most to the relief of congestion and promote highway travel.

Plans Ready Soon.

Plans for some of these roads will be completed within a fortnight and probably all of them by next May. As is always the case, there will be delays in construction, as the right of way will not be widened soon enough or some village will want to put in a sewer at the last minute. So it is imperative that plans be prepared for a larger mileage than available funds will permit to be constructed. It is from this 98 miles that the more than 80 miles will be actually built.

Program Now Prepared.

The 98 mile program, as it is being tentatively prepared, is as follows:

MISSIONARIES IN SYRIA APPEAL TO U. S. FOR WARSHIP

HAIFA, Palestine, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Sidon, on the Syrian coast, is pulsing with excitement over the approach of the rebel Druse tribesmen. Dr. George Ford of New York, dean of the American mission's educational colony, has appealed to the American consul for the dispatch of a ship to the port.

All roads converging on Sidon are crowded with refugees from the interior. The orphanage buildings maintained by the near east relief have been designated by the American consul as a place of refuge for the Americans in Sidon. These include R. E. Boyd of Lancaster, Pa., R. L. Herr of Boston, Louise and Ellen Law, and Beale Jane Porter of New York, and Grace Freidinger of Springfield, Ill. There also are five naturalized American citizens in the neighborhood.

Revolutionary Movement Spreads. BEIRUT, Syria, Nov. 17.—(AP)—A definite revolutionary movement appears to be developing from the hitherto sporadic outbreaks against the

Ask for U. S. Warship

Druse tribesmen in revolt against France are menacing Sidon. Missionaries have appealed to the United States to send a warship from Beirut to Sidon. The Druses have established a center of action at Hasbaya and are terrorizing all the Lebanon region from there. Another Syrian attack against Damascus is feared. The shaded portion of the map shows the areas of Syria in revolt. Naturalized Americans in Syria have been warned to keep to the seacoast.

French. The Druse leaders accused the French authorities of trying to foment a religious war. Europeans here condemn the alleged action of the French in arming Christian civilians along the Mediterranean coast and sending them inland to oppose the Druse advance, as tending to inflame old religious prejudices.

[The Druses as a religious sect are neither Christian nor Mohammedan, but acknowledge only the name Muhammad, or unitarians. They are very warlike and have engaged in bloody conflicts with their Christian neighbors, the Maronites. There have been reports recently that they were being joined by the Moslems in their revolt against the French.]

Moslem leaders say they have given strict orders for their people not to molest Christians.

Messages from Sidon say a high French official is touring the hinterland urging the Christians, who are mostly Maronites and of the Greek orthodox faith, to march against the Druses, whose strength is growing daily.

20,000 Rebels Under Arms. The insurgents, whose strength is estimated at from 20,000 to 25,000, have established headquarters at Hasbaya, 35 miles west of Damascus.

People continue to arrive in Beirut from Damascus, where another uprising is feared. The American consul has notified naturalized Americans that owing to the unsettled conditions in the interior it will be best for them to leave for the coast towns.

Americans here have been counseled to remain indoors in case of an uprising until bluejackets can escort them to the American college.

HARBOR FORTS INADEQUATE FOR DEFENSE—TAYLOR

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Owing to the increased range of naval armament and the development of aircraft, most of the harbor fortifications of the United States, built before the war, are either obsolete or of secondary importance, declares Maj. Gen. Harry Taylor, chief of army engineers. In his annual military report to the secretary of war, made public today.

Pointing out a state of unpreparedness in Panama and the Hawaiian Islands, Gen. Taylor asserted that Oahu, key of the island defenses, is so deficient in searchlights and armament that the chances of repelling an attack under cover of darkness would be very slight.

Discussing the work now being done on the defenses for the Panama canal zone, the report stated that at the present rate of appropriations the completion of construction for the heavy gun protection of the canal will require about seventeen years.

"All this time," Gen. Taylor said, "the canal is believed open to successful attack. It is recommended that $800,000 be appropriated for the fiscal year of 1927 for use in construction of firing positions at both Pacific and Atlantic ends of the canal."

BART DIES OF SCALDING. Eight months old Julia Kane, 619 Francisco avenue, died yesterday afternoon at the county hospital from acids Sunday when she fell into a tub of hot water at her home.

New Protection For Your Child's Health

SCIENTISTS have demonstrated that 50° Fahrenheit is the danger mark in the refrigeration of food.

Above that temperature deterioration starts and bacteria germinate rapidly. This is especially true of milk, so essential to a child's health.

Only a dependable system of electric refrigeration can maintain a temperature safely below the danger mark.

Dependability is one of the outstanding features of the Copeland System of Electric Refrigeration. The Copeland System functions day in and day out without attention.

The Copeland Bond, issued with every installation, guarantees replacement of defective parts, necessary service for one year and eliminates all doubt of satisfactory performance. The Copeland System can be conveniently and quickly installed in your present ice box.

Theaters to Offer Plan by Dec. 3.

(Picture on back page.)
Immediate public relief from ticket scalping was promised yesterday by Attorney Wymouth Kirkland, representing eighteen loop theaters. He appeared before the council committee on judiciary, of which Ald. Jacob M. Arvey (24th) is chairman.
Admitting the city could prosecute the theater managers, Attorney Kirkland asked that the managers be allowed time to devise and submit a proposition for city control of premiums on tickets.
The committee agreed to let the theaters alone meanwhile as long as brokers only charged a fifty cent premium for the best seats. The committee granted until Dec. 3 for the Theater Managers' association to draft their plan.

ACUTE RHEUMATISM HELPED AFTER YEARS OF SUFFERING

However acute and severe a case committee. "The brokers increase the theater's business and makes business for the box office. They bring the same result as a salesman."

Kirkland suggested amendment of the city ordinance so as to permit a 50 cent premium if the city licensed and regulated the sales.
"I agree with you," Ald. Arvey, chairman of the committee, said, "but when premiums of $1, $2, and $3 are charged it is time to call a halt."

Central Agency Suggested.
Establishment of a central agency to handle tickets for all theaters was suggested. It also was suggested that the theaters keep half of the good seats in the box office for sale, instead of giving all of them to brokers, as they do now.

CHICAGO'S CRIME RECORD IS GOOD, COLLINS ASSERTS

Despite its record of a murder a day, crime in Chicago, fairly judged, is no worse than in any other large city in the country, Morgan A. Collins, chief of police, declared last night.

He was speaking at the fifth annual banquet of the Chicago Railway Special Agents and Police association at the Auditorium hotel. Among the listeners were a dozen Municipal, Criminal, and Superior Court judges, police captains, railway executives, and secret service agents.

Unjustified talk of lawlessness in the city, Chief Collins asserted, comes largely from the fallacious belief that a high murder toll is equal to a perpetual reign of crime. In reality most of the murders committed in Chicago, he said, are homicides that cannot be prevented.

FRANCE TO PUT TAX ON FARMER FOR FIRST TIME

BY HENRY WALES.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Copyright, 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The chamber of deputies finance committee this afternoon submitted to parliament the government's amended fiscal project, which is aimed to save France's finances.

The committee approved of the plan by a vote of 84 to 12 following fierce wrangling, during which the left party, which guarantees the Poincaré cabinet's majority in the chamber, threatened to split up, with the Socialists withdrawing their support. And the venerable members of the senate are consistently opposed to many of the measures as proposed.

The financial project, which retains considerable of the complexion of Premier Poincaré's initial draft, despite the attempts of the nationalists and other opponents to warp it, provides for no inflation of the currency beyond the 51,000,000,000 francs now permitted. But it would increase the legal limit the Bank of France may advance the state treasury by 1,250,000,000 francs (about $60,000,000) to a total of 33,500,000,000 francs (about $1,340,000,000).

Provides Capital Levy.
The 30 francs (50 cents) head tax on every inhabitant of the country over fourteen years of age, is abandoned, but a capital levy, camouflaged as "exceptional national contribution" is provided.

The scheme plans the creation of an amortization fund, to be handled by a committee of twenty-three members selected from parliament, the government ministries interested, and prominent bankers.

The amortization fund will theoretically provide the nucleus of a sinking fund for war debts, but the first aim is to be to make up the deficit in the 1925 budget, which amounts to 7,300,000,000 francs ($292,000,000), and which admittedly is largely due to the Moroccan and Syrian wars.

It will also provide funds to pay the 2,500,000,000 francs ($100,000,000) short term government bonds maturing Dec. 3 and 2,000,000,000 francs ($80,000,000) annually for handling short term foreign obligations, which includes $20,000,000 interest annually to the United States for the acquisition of A. E. F. war stocks and a sinking fund for the payment of twenty-five annuities. This, however, is subject to negotiations with America.

How Levy on Capital Works.
Regarding the capital levy, the committee hesitated between a direct seizure upon capital and a taxation on revenue from capital, finally adopting a compromise, which gives citizens an opportunity to choose between paying the total obligation immediately through accepting the capital levy or discharging the sum over a period of fourteen years, which amounts to paying a percentage of the revenue.

As a guarantee for the receipt of the sums due the state treasury reserves the right to insist on immediate full payment whenever a partnership business is dissolved or at the death of the owner or any reorganization of stock companies.

In case property is divided securities must be issued and a portion representing the amount or part due the state will be delivered to the amortization fund committee as security. This portion is estimated at fifteen percent of the net assets.

The levy provides categories for taxation on improved and unimproved property, taxation of all businesses and industrial enterprises, taxation on stock companies, taxation on "rents" or state bonds and securities held for income, including all those originally issued as tax free, which include many government war loans. The holders of these securities—and every French family possessing some as a sort of old age life insurance assuring them a certain income after they are too old to work—may exchange the hitherto tax free papers for taxable paper or retain the original investments by the payment of a tax of 10 per cent of their value.

Unproductive wealth, like jewelry, gold, silver, art objects, and most luxury articles, all are to suffer varying taxation.

The income tax comprises two categories, one for professional men, which includes every line not commercial, with $1,300 income exempt, and 3 per cent from 30,000 francs to $6,000 francs ($1,200 to $2,400); 8 per cent from $6,000 to $10,000 francs ($1,200 to $2,400); 4 per cent from 100,000 francs to 200,000 francs ($4,000 to $8,000) and 6 per cent above 200,000 francs income.

Farmers are taxed for the first time in France's history by a clause which provides that the agricultural worker shall have 10,000 francs ($400) income exemption, being taxed 1 per cent on incomes from 10,000 to 30,000 francs ($400 to $1,200), 3 per cent; 3 per cent from 30,000 to 40,000 francs; and above 40,000 francs, 4 per cent.

Foreigners living in France suffer with the natives, as the project specifically states:

"Property and securities held abroad by French citizens or by any other resident habitually living in France is payable in fourteen annuities, equaling 15 per cent of the annual net revenue."

Hundreds of wealthy Americans who have established domicile in France will have to pay the taxes. Financial experts already are searching papers in law suits, especially divorce cases, getting the testimony of various foreigners who have sworn that they legally reside in France.

ALLIED DEMANDS ON DISARMAMENT MET BY GERMANY

BY JOHN CLAYTON,

(Copyright, 1925, By The Chicago Tribune.)

BERLIN, Nov. 17. — The German government announced officially tonight that an agreement has been reached with the allies on the disarmament question on the following basis:

1. The security police must enlist for lifelong service, while the numbers of police quartered in barracks must be limited to the needs of the various German towns in the provinces.

2. The supreme command of the army will be brought into conformity with the treaty of Versailles, Gen. von Seeckt will be replaced as commander in chief by the reichswehr minister. 3. Specialized weapons are permitted the German army according to its needs. Tanks are permitted, but no special tank corps may be organized.

Retains Koenigsberg Guns. 4. Germany is permitted to retain the guns at Koenigsberg mounted on movable carriages.

Private organizations will be brought within the German regulations which forbid the employment of army officers to train them for military service.

The allied military control commission will remain in Germany for some time in a purely technical capacity. Its reduction has already been begun, however, according to the official German statement.

There is nothing in the agreement between Germany and the allies which prevents Gen. von Seeckt from being named as reichswehr minister or from being placed on the same footing as the labor, posts, telegraphs and railways ministries which have always been considered as technical portfolios and above party.

Consult State Chiefs on Pact. The German cabinet today announced its final decision on the Locarno pact will be delayed until after the meeting between the ministers and the chief executives of the German states and provinces on Thursday. While a definite "yes" thus officially has not been given, the nationalist press tonight asserts the ministers this morning unanimously accepted as sufficient the concessions in the Rhineland announced yesterday by the allies.

Supporting this is a semi-official communiqué stating that Foreign Minister Stresemann has been entrusted with the task of framing the necessary laws for the acceptance of the Locarno treaties, around which the recharging debates of next week will center.

Catholic Party Disappointed. The Catholic party apparently is deeply disappointed with the extent of the Rhineland concessions. The sharpest criticism against Dr. Stresemann's conduct of the negotiations was made by Herr Stegerwald, one of the party leaders, in a speech this afternoon at Cassel. But the speaker supported former Chancellor Wirth's plan for acceptance on the ground that the negotiations have now gone so far that there is no turning back.

WOODEN RIFLES TRUSTEE'S PLAN FOR R. O. T. C. BOYS

John A. English, school board member who recently objected to target practice in high school R. O. T. C. classes, denied yesterday rumors that he would lead a fight to oust military training from the schools.

"I am not attacking R. O. T. C. work as a whole," he declared. "My criticism applies only to the use of loaded weapons. I intend to fight that as long as I am a member of the board."

Since the meeting of the board last Wednesday, when Mr. English protested a $200 appropriation for heating a shooting gallery at the Wendell Phillips high school, his attitude has been widely discussed.

"Drilling is all right; I don't object to that," the trustee asserted yesterday. "Army men need to know how to use revolvers as well as rifles. The next thing we know we'll be having revolver practice in the schools. Why not? I may let them use wooden rifles or none at all."

STATE AGREES TO LIFE TERM FOR COP SLAYER

Walter Krauser is to get life imprisonment for the killing of Patrolman Ralph Souders, slain while trying to stop the robbery of an Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store in 1922. Assistant State's Attorney Michael Romano agreed to that yesterday in court before Judge John P. McGearty. Krauser still is under indictment for the murder of Bernard Grant, whom he killed while both were prisoners in the county jail. Grant had been convicted of being Krauser's aid in the fatal robbery. Krauser had been granted a retrial.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17. — (Special.) — President Coolidge and his cabinet will eat Montana grown turkeys this Thanksgiving. They will be furnished by the Pendera County Poultry Growers' association. The turkey for President Coolidge has arrived at the White House.

MINERS READY TO MEET OPERATORS; ADJUST DISPUTE

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17. — (AP.) — The anthracite mine workers stand ready to negotiate a new wage contract "in a spirit of compromise and give-and-take," said John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, in a statement tonight. They also stand ready, he said, to meet the operators "in amicable negotiations to work out a contract for from one to five years continuous operation of the mines."

SUICIDE NOTE OF MRS. HOLT IS RULED OUT

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Holt, Lake county's first woman defendant in a murder trial for at least a dozen years, was called to the stand in Judge Claire C. Edwards' court late this afternoon. And the spectators, banked about the door, moved hopefully forward, confident that now, at last, after two days of technical testimony on mathematical angles, of incidence and physiological reactions to gunshot wounds, the woman in the smart, looking red frock was to tell what she knew of the death, Sept. 26, of her mother, Mrs. Lillie Holt.

But this anticipatory interest in the crowded courtroom didn't live long. For Mrs. Harco, on trial with her husband, Albert, and her stepfather, Arthur Holt, for the murder of Clara G. Welch, senior defense counsel, merely to identify as her mother's handwriting the penciled lines of a so-called suicide note.

The letter itself had been ruled out by Judge Edwards, but the defense elected to prove it up.

Just as Clara, in her wine colored dress and her brown hat, walked up to the witness chair, her husband was leaving it. He walked forward a few paces and assisted his wife up the step. She stood straight and erect as she was sworn. Then she sat down and looked at the letter and envelope, which Attorney Welch put into her lap.

"Do you recognize this writing," he asked.

"Yes, I do," Clara's voice was low.

"Whose is it?"

"My mother's," Clara's voice was lower.

"How frequently have you seen it?"

"O, hundreds of times."

Then Mrs. Harco explained that her mother wrote her regularly once a week, and her testimony was over for the day at least.

Tomorrow the men defendants will take the stand in their own defense. And Clara, last of the three, will tell to the jury her version of her mother's death, following a family quarrel at the Holt summer home in Fox Lake.

In proving up the so-called suicide note this afternoon, Attorney Joseph Kaig called in sequence Holt's sister, Mrs. Jeanette Schoben, who found the letter in the Holt home; her daughter, Helen, who took it, sealed, to Mr. Welch's office; Mr. Welch, who gave it to his stenographer; the stenographer, who gave it to Harco; Harco, who opened it; and Mrs. Harco, who identified the writing as that of her mother.

For the rest, today's defense witnesses testified to the good character of the defendants. Nearly a score of employers of the Consumers' Company of Chicago told of their high regard for Holt, a fellow employee. A number of furniture dealers in Milwaukee and Chicago gave similar testimony about Harco. And many Fox Lake residents spoke highly of Holt and of Clara.

Testimony of a medical expert rounded out the day. Dr. Martin Chase of Chicago, who said he had come in contact with more than 20,000 victims of gunshot wounds during his war service in France, and one of the defense's most important witnesses thus far, said he believed it entirely possible for Mrs. Holt to have fired three shots into her abdominal region and then to have fired the fourth and fatal shot into her mouth.

Under cross-examination by State's Attorney A. V. Smith, who, with Sidney Block, is in charge of the prosecution, Dr. Chase repeated that this shooting sequence was not only possible but, "from what I have learned of the situation, is probable."

Bulgars Invade Greek Town Injure Ten with Bombs

ATHENS, Nov. 17.—[U.P.]—A band of Bulgarian combatants today invaded the Macedonian village of Florina, throwing bombs at the central coffee house and seriously wounding ten persons. [Florina is in Greece, a short distance from the Greco-Bulgarian frontier and to the westward of the scene of the recent Greco-Bulgarian conflict which allegedly had its inception in activities of the combatants, or irregular bands, followed by trouble between Greek and Bulgarian guards.]

BEER AND WINE HELD LEGAL IN BADGER HOMES

Contrivances for Making Them Also Get O. K.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Possession of beer and wine in one's home is not an offense under the state prohibition law, neither is the mere possession of contrivances for the making of beer and wine. It is a crime, however, to "sell or manufacture beer or wine."

Is the most important home brew case to come before the Supreme court since the state prohibition law was enacted, these points were decided today. The decision was written by Justice Brandeis in the English case, from Iowa county.

Convicted on Four Counts. English was running a hotel at Mineral Point and it was claimed that beer and wine were found upon his premises. The lower court found English guilty on four counts, the manufacture of intoxicating liquors without a permit; unlawfully having in his possession without a permit private manufactured distilled liquor; having in his possession compounds and ingredients from which beer is customarily made; and the unlawful possession of private manufactured liquors containing alcohol in excess of one-half of one per cent.

Amendment Changed Law. The Supreme court acquitted him on all counts except manufacture. The opinion discloses that an amendment made by the legislature after the Severance law was introduced, radically changed the law concerning the possession of beer and wine in homes.

TWO TWO DRUG STORES. Two drug stores, who robbed yesterday morning, from the store of A. Lieberman, 325 and North Western avenues, 325 and a quantity of whiskey was taken. Two men robbed the pharmacy of Herbert Bloom, 5401 Indiana avenue, of $75.

VOTE NEAR BEER TAX AS BREWERY KEY FOR SLEUTHS

Levy to Be Tenth of Cent a Gallon.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—As a means of providing for inspection of all breweries, the house ways and means committee today voted to impose a new tax of one-tenth of one cent a gallon on near beer and other cereal beverages. The action was taken at the suggestion of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury L. C. Andrews.

The original treasury proposal was for a tax of one cent per gallon, but as a result of protests from manufacturers that this would be burdensome, the rate was reduced.

Would Give Sleuths Access. Revenue from the levy is not expected to amount to more than $60,000 or $70,000 annually and the only purpose is to give prohibition enforcement officials access to all breweries.

Whether the committee will exempt legitimate drama from the admission tax is still uncertain. A subcommittee has completed a tentative draft of a clause which will be presented to the full committee. It provides exemption for theaters "where there is being produced exclusively a spoken standard drama, as distinguished from ephemeral productions, such as farces, comedies, burlesques, and extravaganzas."

Define Legitimate Drama. The clause further defines such drama as "a play which is a consecutive narrative interpreted by one set of characters, all necessary to development of the plot, the presentation of which consumes more than one hour and forty-five minutes of time, and regardless of whether such presentation is with or without musical parts or musical accompaniments." It is provided that the exemption from tax shall not apply if tickets are sold by scalpers.

The full ways and means committee acted on a number of amendments to administrative provisions of the revenue law. It was provided that taxpayers in filing their returns on March 15 may make them of a tentative character and amend them up to June 15.

FOUR HELD AS FREIGHT THIEVES. Several small robberies, involving United States mails, have been charged with the arrest yesterday of four men who are charged with stealing from interstate shipments. The men arrested are Harry Lowe, John and Joseph Sullivan, brothers, and Alvin Karpis.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," for only 75 cents. This is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

When two dark faced young men, who were Samoots' pals, held their ways near to their hip pockets to turn Luigi away he vowed.

BROTHER VOWS VENGEANCE AT SAMOOTS' COFFIN

Display Marks Rites for Gunless Gangster.

Gangster pals of Salvatore Amatauna, known as Samoots, guided a kingly funeral procession yesterday through the streets of Little Italy, that nation within a city.

Before the march began the dead Samoots' brother, Luigi Amatauna, sobbed, had flung himself on the silver caulk. He vowed in his native tongue that he would see there was vengeance for the murder. And Luigi Amatauna how, for before Samoots died he whispered to Luigi the names of his two assassins, a pair of rival bootleggers, the police say.

When two dark faced and silent young men, who stood sentinel at Samoots' bier and held their fingers always near to their hip pockets, sought to turn Luigi away he repeated his vow.

Sentinels Advise Patience.

"Not now—wait," they said, and Luigi, though still weeping like a man bereft of all he had ever held dear, subsided.

It was a grand parade—more than a funeral column—that left the modest little second story flat at 2128 Seminary avenue where dwelt Samoots' sweetheart, Rose Pecoraro. So that none might miss the significance of the long line of flower-laden cars and mourners' limousines, the leading car in the procession bore on high a life-sized flower-trimmed portrait of the dead Samoots.

First the dead Death Corner at Milton avenue and Oak street swept the cars, leading on in a winding route through all of Little Italy. Hundreds of Samoots' wide-eyed countrymen and women and children lined the curbsides to watch the passing of this gangster who boasted of never carrying a gun, who was oftentimes kind to them and generous, who went the mysterious way so many Gennas had gone.

Show They Still Are Strong.

On went the cars to Taylor and Halsted streets, where the bootleg gangs hold sway. This was the way of Samoots' friends to show that they still were to be counted in the reckoning. And then came the final touch of defiance.

Right past the scene where Amatauna met his death, in the barber shop at 804 West Roosevelt road, was driven the long line of funeral cars. That was the hint of more death, the police declared.

Then, swift as the traffic would permit, the cortege proceeded to Mount Carmel cemetery. There the body of Samoots was placed in a temporary vault. Within a few days, it was announced, the dead gangster's remains will be sent to Pozzallo, Sicily, Amatauna's native city. There it will be buried in consecrated ground.

Proud of Obtaining Rites.

Samoots' relatives and friends were grateful, and they were proud, that they had obtained for him the last rites of the Roman Catholic church.

For two hours the funeral service was delayed while the arrival of a priest was awaited, but at length came the Rev. Father Lewis of St. Philip's church, and two acolytes, bearing censors.

Chanting the burial litany, Father Lewis sprinkled holy water on the coffin, a ceremony he repeated at the grave.

Two friends read eulogies over the body, another gave the obituary, and it was done. Samoots, said his comrades, had been given a funeral greater than that of any other of the gang leaders in Chicago.

Pat Learns Where Pier Ends and the Lake Begins

Patrick Fitzgerald, 50, of 637 Madison street, was uncertain just where the pier ended and the lake began. Yesterday he stepped off the Austin avenue pier. He found out. Alvin Justin, 6426 South Sangamon street, threw Patrick a rope. Chicago avenue police took him to the county hospital. There it was said Patrick will be none the worse for his experiment.

OUTCAST

By Elizabeth York Miller

A hand of crook, stumbling on the fact that Sir Adrian Shale's wife is alive, when she mysteriously had died six months before in Italy, arrives at Greenwich, Sir Adrian's home, for the purpose of blackmailing him. Miss Winchell, one of the crooks posing as a widow, claims a letter of introduction to Sir Adrian, who is kind to her and her "daughter," Doris. She is in reality an orphan whom Miss Winchell has befriended. One of the crooks, Beauty, asks Doris to marry him. She refuses. A few days later Sir Adrian calls on her, and Beauty, announcing he would like to marry Doris, she tells him she knows his wife is alive, and demands fifty thousand pounds for silence. Sir Adrian does not believe her, but agrees to pay the money. She returns to London immediately, and discovers Sir Adrian has tricked her. She is disturbed by Miss Winchell's story. Sir Adrian decides to make an investigation. His wife's former maid, Anna Ferguson, failed to come back to England after Lady Shale's death in Italy. In attempting to find her, Sir Adrian calls on her sister, Madam George, a fashionable London dressmaker, who is unable to give him any information. Doris rebels at the life she is forced to lead with Miss Winchell and Uncle Charlie, and takes a job as a maid at Madam George's. She meets Sir Adrian but leaves him in anger because of his lack of faith in her. Madam George promises to be especially kind to Doris.

INSTALLMENT XXI.
THE BLOW FALLS

Doris went to supper that night exultant even the sneering remarks of Stella and Fanny, furiously jealous of Doris's preference, ceased to hurt.

And then the blow fell.

Fanny Nieve had just gone out, when she returned after a few moments with a mocking smile to announce to Doris: "There's a chauffeur person downstairs of the name of Gibbons who wants to see you, Miss Winchell. He says he's an old friend of yours."

And at those words, like this mist before a derisive gale, poor Doris' happiness went in a moment, leaving her cold with despair and foreboding.

She ran downstairs scared and apprehensive. Why had Bill come to Doris street? Why had he broken his promise not to call to see her? A dread intuition warned her there was bad news to be reckoned accountable for it all.

She found him standing sulky just inside the hall door, and greeted him in an excited whisper.

"What is it, Bill? Why are you here?"

He looked at her through swollen eyes. "That's a nice question to ask after not having laid eyes on me for a fortnight. And why shouldn't I come here? Not good enough for you, eh?"

"I didn't mean that, Bill, you know I didn't mean it. Only you promised—"

"What if I did? You're a nice one to talk about promises, you are. What about how you were going to let me know where I could meet you?"

"Well, Bill, I was going to—so soon as I had settled down. Really I was."

Doris was in a pitiable state of nerves. She judged, quite rightly, that Fanny's listening ears were at the top of the staircase. Madam might hear, too, and she was very strict about followers. And to add to Doris's uneasiness was her consciousness of Bill's unprepossessing appearance. He looked so Good morning!

She's just Camille, a Barbary coast dance hall girl, about whose last name nobody bothers. Just Camille. But she has a smile to put heart into a man; a deep and understanding sympathy to break down the barriers of bitterness and loneliness and discouragement in his soul; a generosity to shame him and spur him on to better things, and a loyal comradeship with which to help him face the world and foil defeat.

That's Camille of the Barbary coast. And as played by Mae Busch, how you're going to love her!

There's always something inspiring to me about Mae Busch's work. Her steady eyes, friendly smile, genuine cordiality, interspersed with the clean cut, alert, proudly erect person of her, are unfailingly refreshing. She never slumps and she never cheats, no matter what her role may be.

Here you find her as the redeeming angel of a young man of good family who has gone astray—and who would sure have been a dog to fall to "come back" after the way she does her stuff.

Which he isn't. Owen Moore's Robert Norton is, after all, a decidedly worth while human and in making him realize that fact, Camille works out gloriously her own salvation.

The picture, while not a great one, is interesting and human and rings true. Miss Busch is his big, white light, but she has exceedingly good support and Mr. Moore, whom it's mighty nice to see again, shines very satisfactorily on his own.

As regards the Camille part of it, the name might just as well have been Sally or Nell or Chloe—for the lady has no coquetry.

"Tell me, tell me all about it, Bill," she urged anxiously as they started off.

"What is it?"

"Hear, Bill said laconically.

"Did he faint or something?"

"He fainted all right." There was a sinister ring in the reply.

"O, Bill, I am so sorry," she said with sincere emotion. "Poor Uncle Charlie—poor Mimi!"

"Don't you worry yourself about Mimi," Bill said meaningly. "It ain't Mimi wants to see you. She reckons, and I kind of agree with her, that you haven't behaved any too well, running off and leaving your friends in the lurch, and never coming near them because you're too much the lady." He mouthed the phrase with a sneer.

"It isn't that," Doris said despairingly.

"That's what you say," Bill answered shortly.

They were running through St. James' park, Bill driving like a madman. Doris kept silent.

"Anyhow," he said at length as they turned into the side streets near Victoria, "anyhow now perhaps you'll condescend to let me hear from you soon." He shot across the main road and swung the car into a narrow turning.

"Of course, Bill—and—and you are getting on all right, aren't you?"

"O, yes. I'm living a strictly upright life like I said. Only it's no thanks to you, Lady Doris, is it?" he answered savagely.

And Doris, feeling that the reproach was justified, could make no answer.

Bill brought the car to a sudden stop at a red light and he said to the Westminister house. "You'd better get out here and walk," he said.

Doris turned to him in surprise. "But why?" she asked, a sickening, half-formed terror forcing itself upon her.

"Never mind why; there's reasons," he replied. "Hop out."

She got out mechanically. Aren't you coming in, Bill?"

But he had started the car again and only a grunt: "No, I'm not," came in answer to her question as he disappeared into the gloom.

Doris hurried forward, miserable, fearful. What did this mean? There was only one answer—a terrible one—that fitted the question.

There were lights in the upper story of the house and a waiting motor car by the door. Doris ran to the door and opened it. "How is he? Don't say I'm too late."

But Mimi's face was hard and drawn. She looked an old woman, and her voice was bitter as she replied: "Do not waste your sentiment over me, Doris. You'd better get upstairs and see for yourself. Charlie wanted to see you; I think he was a fool—"

"A sob broke the harshness of her words "but he's not likely to ask for much more in this world."

Doris ran up the familiar staircase, tears flooding her own eyes. And outside Uncle Charlie's door she saw one of Bill's "reasons."

There was a police constable sitting there, awkwardly, on a hard kitchen chair. Doris drew back in anguish at the sight of the uniformed man, his helmet placed, stupidly, it seemed to her, on the floor by his side.

"O—"

The word came in a long, drawn out moan.

The policeman rose to his feet. He was a young constable, and this an unfamiliar and unwelcome task for him.

"I'm sorry, miss," he said in a kindly voice. "The doctor's in with him now, but if you're the young lady they sent for, you're to go in."

She entered.

In the bed, uncannily pale and wasted, was a travesty of the cheerful, but hearted Uncle Charlie she had known. He looked old and unnatural, and his pallor made the crinkly red hair look redder. A stern faced man was bending over him.

Doris went forward softly. "Is he still alive?" she whispered.

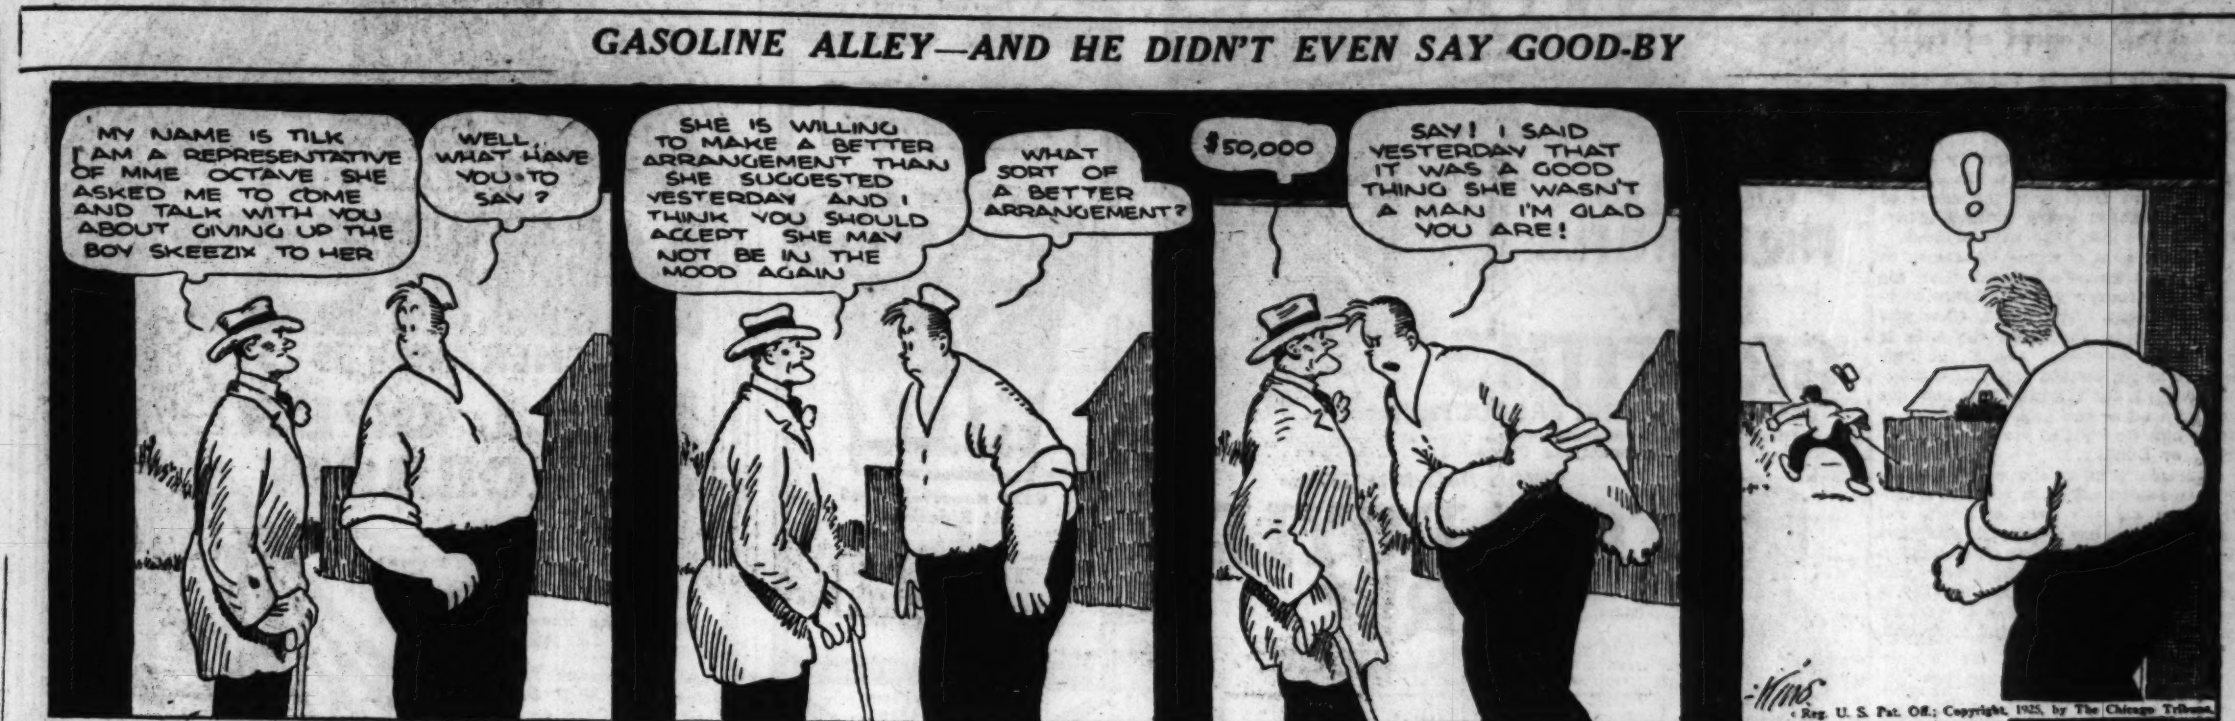

"The doctor nodded. "Yes, but he isn't long."

"Yes, but he isn't long," he answered in an unbusinesslike professional tone. "I'm afraid it's only a matter of an hour or two at the most."

Doris went down on her knees by the side of the bed, and took the long slender hand now so lifeless and cold. The sick man opened his eyes and tried to smile.

"Don't let him talk," the doctor said tranquilly. "I have a few words to say to his wife."

She went quietly from the room. Doris stayed where she was, motionless as a statue.

CLOSEUPS

H. B. Warner has been signed by Cecil B. De Mille to play the featured leading role in "Silence," an adaptation of the crook play.

The count knows no happiness until, long afterward, he discovers Dornin, madly loves Miss Drake, the pretty secretary of the house of Dornin, whom Rodrigo also worships.

A moment's hesitation, and then Rodrigo proves himself a hero. He paints himself a cheap yellow before the horrified eyes of Miss Drake—who, you understand, has strong leanings toward him; says a flippant farewell and mounts a plunging outgoing liner.

Which is where you leave him, crumpling a rose Miss Drake had given him, looking awful sad, but probably way down deep deriving intense satisfaction from the knowledge that he is the good boy he's turned out to be.

Without doubt Mr. Valentino is a perfect darling throughout the film. Gussie Ferguson is nice as Dornin, and Gertrude Olmstead, not as pretty in the blonde wig she wears as she is in her own hair, is charming as Miss Drake.

Nita Naldi? Well, she's been reducing so much that she'd be a heap more appetizing if she wore more clothes. In her street setup she's lovely, but in evening dress she's not. You'll like "Cobra," I reckon.

See you—soon.

She Finds It Simpler to Budget His Income Than His Extra Time

BY DORIS BLAKE.

How much companionship should a man give his wife? Is she entitled to his Sundays, to certain evenings of the week?

It sounds like the domestic applicant who inquires how many evenings and Sundays she is entitled to take off, doesn't it?

But the question apparently comes up in a number of homes. In one recently heard from it is the cause of a "scene about every other Sunday, which is terrible," the wife confides. I suspect it is a whole lot easier to budget a husband's income, than his time. The former you can figure with out sentiment. The man's time you can't. Not in so far as the wife is concerned, anyway. And if the husband hasn't a certain amount of it for his wife, I don't know how you are going to solve the problem of how to make him stay put at her side any evening, or Sunday.

Championship, as the wife wants it, is a two-sided affair, a voluntary contribution on the part of each, not something she has to wrangle and fight for. With business as her rival a woman is up against a pretty stiff proposition. The world's sympathy is hardly hers when the man is working overtime to supply her and their children with extra comforts.

Yet, she has her side of the case. Not infrequently she should be particularly willing to substitute the luxuries for an hour or two of the old-time companionship they used to know. Nor is it always the drive of supplying luxuries for his family that leads the man to his business, to the exclusion of his wife. It is often a purely personal ambition, a personal anxiety to own a larger bank account, the desire to outdo his fellow-men, a worthy enough ambition if the wife isn't sacrificed in the struggle.

The woman who asks today about her right to her husband's Sundays has been married 15 years. Breakfast is practically the only weekday meal she has with him. He works until 11 and later, evenings. On Sunday evenings this right off, and here, in her opinion, she has to entertain his business friends and acquaintances. This she is perfectly willing to do, week nights, and on occasional busy dinner hours. She is here and alone, without the intrusion of guests. Her contention is not with abuse, and the charge that she is not the sort of wife that helps a husband along. It is the only thing that gets angry about, the wife reports.

Frankly, I am not of the opinion that you can remold a character that has been "setting" for some 15 years. And if a man does not think enough of his wife and four children to give this man (I have) to want to be with them alone one evening of the week, and arrange his affairs more systematically, he can be with them, he must be totally devoid of sentiment toward them. In which event, I can see no solution of the wife's happiness if she insists upon pressing the issue.

"On the other hand, women have won contentment, at least for themselves, by enduring what can not be cured cheerfully. It might prove a clever stroke for this particular wife to prove that she can be the most charming hostess in the world at these Sunday evening soirees.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Acquire Fresh Interests.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a boy who lately dropped me cold. I have not done a thing that I know of which would cause him to act this way. Please advise. RUTH."

The silence would indicate he had lost interest. The wise thing is to find other interests and gradually forget him.

Selfish of Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and am in love with a young man who spends all of his time with me, and if I go with another fellow he gets jealous. You're making a mistake in spending all of your time with any one young man, anxious. It's too much to ask of a young girl, and he shows a selfish streak in expecting it."

Stamps to Give.

"Several years ago I was an enthusiastic stamp collector and now have two albums, each of which has at least a thousand varieties entered. Do you know of some boy or girl, interested in such collections, who will make good use of the gift? I want them to go to some one who will really appreciate them. G. V. T."

You will have to write in to us if you wish to obtain this wonderful gift of stamps.

Deserve Your Help.

"My husband has deserted me, and I have been having a hard time to get along. I wonder if some one has a woman's coat, size 34, or a sweater, which I can wear under my light-weight coat? I shall appreciate any other clothing for myself, or for the children. The baby has had rickets. The father clothes that would fit a child 3 or 4 years old. J. C. N."

This is a worthy case, and we hope the needs will soon be supplied.

Society Players to Make Special Appearance Today

BY NANCY R.
That talented quartet of north shore players, Mrs. Laird Bell, Virginia Fitzhugh, Percy Eckhart and Sam Otis, are stepping behind the footlights again this afternoon. They're going to help tell "The Truth About Blaise," in the North Shore Guild production, sponsored by the Playwrights theatre of Chicago—a special matinee up at the Vito theater (Belmont and Sheffield avenues)—and, unless I miss my guess, it's going to be a snappy occasion.
If you'd like to go, but have nowhere to leave your youngsters, bring them right along, for they can be parked in a model nursery at the theater under the protection of a capable matron, with sand piles and hobby horses at their disposal, while you are enjoying yourself at the play.
Still more allurements: some of the gayest young women in town will usher you to your places, the list including Mrs. John Root, Mrs. Russell Barnitz, Mrs. Russell Christie, Annette Washburne, Mrs. Hempstead Washburne, Sarah Hinde, Florence Harris, Mrs. Cecil Barnes and Mrs. Alexander Stevenson Jr. And fourteen pretty buds of the season, marshaled by Pleasant Noyes (one of the most decorative in the bouquet), will serve you tea in the balcony during the intermission.
Beautiful old tables and copboards loaded with choice antique Georgian silver and old Sheffield plate drew a large and fashionable throng to the Arts club yesterday at tea time. I caught a glimpse of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, Miss Elsie McCormick and Mrs. Charles Dempster gathered about one of the loveliest displays. Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick's apt eye was caught by an especially choice silver urn, which I shouldn't be at all surprised to see some time gracing her new dining room.
Then there were Mrs. Herbert Bradley, Arthur Aldis, Mrs. William E. Parson, Mrs. G. H. Mayo, Mrs. J. J. Kearney and Miss Pauline Kearney, Mrs. Russell J. Matthias, Gerald Frank, Mrs. Tennessee Anderson, Miss Elizabeth Baker, Miss Marion Farnsworth, Mrs. Clair E. More, H. A. Richards, and Mrs. Josiah McRoberts among the crowds about the tea tables.

Day's News in Society

There will be quite a bit of entertaining for Miss Margaret Guinness of London, England, while she is in Chicago as the guest of Miss Genevieve Carpenter for the next fortnight. Miss Guinness, who is back in Chicago after a long absence abroad and in the east, gave a dinner party for her guest last evening, and Miss Rine Winterbeck is to give a party next week, the date as yet undecided. Miss Mary Meeker is to entertain at dinner on Saturday night, and Miss Peggy Hamilton will give a dinner party at the Ambrose hotel on next Monday evening. There are also to be several luncheons during Miss Guinness' stay here.
The innovation of men serving on the receiving committee begun at an Arts club tea several weeks ago proved so popular that the idea bids fair to be perpetuated. Arthur Aldis, James MacVicar, and Augustus S. Peabody were included in the group which assisted the tea yesterday afternoon which opened two exhibitions, one of miniature and water colors by P. Field Stoddard and another of antique Georgian silver and old Sheffield plate from the Brainerd-Lemon collection of Louisville, Ky. Also assisting were Charles W. Dempster, chairman of the reception committee were Miss Naomi Donnelly, Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham, Mrs. William V. Kelley, Mrs. Tracy Drake, Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mrs. William E. Clarke, Mrs. Tennessee Anderson, Mrs. Anna Stacey, and Miss Marie Blanka.
Miss Jane Linn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Weber Linn of 1357 East 56th street, wore a gown of pale blue crepe trimmed with broad velvet and carried a bouquet of yellow roses, forget-me-nots, and daisies, for her debut party yesterday afternoon at the Linn residence. Mrs. Linn, who was wearing gray chiffon trimmed with blue brocade, was assisted in receiving by Mrs. William K. Linn, Mrs. William Fairbank, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, Mrs. Ernest Freund, Mrs. James A. Field, and Mrs. Frederick Woodward. The debutante assisted by Miss Janet Chase, Miss Dorothy Michelson, Miss Marion McFadden, Miss Florence Noyes, Miss Emily Otis, Miss Marie Smith, Miss Jane Warner, and Miss Rose Winterbeck.
Mr. and Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds of 144 Lake Shore drive are to give a dinner and dance at the Saddle and Cycle club this evening for Miss Jeannette Reynolds, who is Mr. Reynolds' cousin. There are to be about 15 young people at the affair.
The most important social event on today's calendar in Evanston will be the charity ball to be given at the Evanston Country club this evening for the benefit of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. The Charles H. Bosworth, and Mrs. Rollin W. Keyes are in charge.
An Italian dinner at Madonna Center will be given tomorrow evening, the proceeds of which will benefit the settlement. Miss Marie Plamondon, secretary of the center and one of its most ardent workers, is in charge.
Mrs. Henry A. Hoffman of 2600 Lake View avenue, has issued invitations for a luncheon and hostessy shower on next Tuesday for her niece, Miss Helen Raigh, who is to be married on Nov. 11, to Franklin Clement.
Of interest on the south side is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Hillman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hillman of McCormick, N. J., to Edward Strawbridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Strawbridge of 7116 Coles avenue.
Mrs. Richard T. Fox of Wheaton, will give a luncheon at the Casino on Dec. 8, for Miss Florence Noyes, and Miss Janet Chase, two of the winter's debutantes.

Year's First 'Faust' Fills Opera Boxes with Old Regulars

The first "Faust" of the opera season brought a marked dignity to the Auditorium box circle, where the older members of Chicago families, who haven't missed a "Faust" for many seasons, were practically all in their places. Not a vacancy marred the horseshoe.

Nesselrode Pudding.

The frozen puddings, often somewhat alcoholic, used to be the "grand slam" in the refreshments on pretentious occasions for this season of the year. The popularity of the Nesselrode pudding has never quite ceased, but there are fantastic differences in the recipes one can find for it. Mary Ronald, in the "Century Cook Book," says the recipe she gives was obtained by the great French cook, Gouffé, from the chef of Count Nesselrode.
The formula she gives is the following: "One cup of French chestnuts, one cup of granulated sugar, yolks of three eggs, one-half pint of cream, one-fourth pound of mixed candied fruits, one cup of almonds, one-half can of pineapple, drained, one and one-half tablespoons of maraschino, or two tablespoons of sherry (use sherry flavor now), one-half teaspoon of vanilla, sugar or one-fourth teaspoon of vanilla extract. Remove the shells from the chestnuts; put them in boiling water for three minutes. Then peel and chop them finely. Add the sugar, yolks, and pineapple. Beat the yolks and sugar together until thick. Add the chestnuts and pineapple. Cook slowly for five minutes, making a sugar syrup."
The rest of the directions abbreviated are to pour this syrup over the lightly beaten egg yolks, slowly, constantly stirring; cook this mixture stirring constantly until it coats the spoon. Put into a bowl and beat till cold. When cold add cream, marshmallows and fruit. Cut the candied fruits and the chestnuts into dice; pour over them the maraschino and let them stand until ready to use. Put into a saucepan on the fire a cupful of granulated sugar and one-quarter cup of boiling water; stir until the sugar is dissolved, then let it cook slowly for five minutes, making a sugar syrup.

Standing on It.
My friend and I took a trip to California. We had never been west of Chicago before in our lives. In San Francisco we learned, in order to get our train, it was necessary to take the ferry and cross the bay. After following directions we found ourselves, as we supposed, in a railroad waiting room. We stood, loaded with packages, bundles, and baggage, not knowing where to go next. Seeing a seamy faced man loitering against a post, I struggled up to him. "Pardon me," said I, "could you tell me the way to the ferry?" "Yes, ma'am," he drawled; "you're standing on it." Amidst the gutfauns of several passengers we fled.

CROWDS WATCH STERLING CROWN DIANA OF RADIO

Fourth Annual Show On at Coliseum.

Mrs. Florence E. Erickson of Bloomington, Ill., was crowned the Radio Diana of the middle west last night. The ceremony, performed by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, marked the official opening of Chicago's Fourth Annual Radio show, which will be in progress at the Coliseum until Sunday night.

Record Crowds Filled the Coliseum.
Mrs. Erickson was the winner of a contest conducted by the Radio Manufacturers' association and the show officials to find the woman radio fan in the middle west who had heard the most stations. She produced records to show that since she has been a fan she has listened in on more than 400 stations in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Europe.

Radio in Farmers' Homes.
Just previous to the coronation, Lieut. Gov. Sterling made a speech which was broadcast over a hookup of ten Chicago stations, while loudspeakers carried his voice to the thousands who crowded the Coliseum. In his talk he spoke of the good that radio is doing to get the farmer in touch with the outside world.

"The radio broadcasting stations of Chicago are doing a great work in giving diversified programs which add to the gaiety of the life of the farmer," he said. "Several years ago I was a little apprehensive that the advance of this new science might interfere with the smaller newspapers and the movies, but it has helped, rather than hindered."

To Broadcast Education.
"Through the generosity of Boettus Sullivan, the son of the late Roger C. Sullivan, the University of Illinois soon will have its own broadcasting station and it won't be long before the poor boy on the farm and in the smaller towns, for that matter, are being educated over the radio by the highly paid professors of the university."

He then spoke of the wonders of wireless, stating that within the last few weeks a radio device to prevent railroad wrecks successfully was tried in Michigan. This device, he said, slowed up and even stopped speeding trains, making it possible to prevent accidents.

Tonight W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast its 9 o'clock program from the model studio at the Coliseum and radio fans will be given an opportunity of seeing Fred Ham and other W-G-N artists in person.

After 30, Woman's Neck Needs Sternest Kind of Discipline

by Archie D. Donnelly

After thirty a woman's neck and her figure need the services of a keen eyed female detective—the best detective being herself, of course. None like herself can so quickly detect the drooping cheek line, the shadowy chin line, and the slight coarsening immediately under the chin.

Of the two, the ravages of time are more easily concealed on the figure than on the neck. The high collar does not help. On the contrary, it throws into sharp relief the slightest tendency to thickening. The extremely smart high collar bands shown on some of the season's models are a temptation—but one not to be succumbed to by a person with a rounded profile. Neither should the short necked woman fall for one of them.

Thirty, as we have said, is the turning point of the youthful neck line. Generally speaking, unless one is fat all over, one is not concerned much about double chins and shadowy lines thereabout until this borderline of years is reached. It would be better were trained to think of the neck dangers of this age earlier. Theoretical women, as a rule do. Their necks are given massage along with the cold cream applications to the face in their processes of makeup and removing it. Twenty-five would be a better age to begin the work of holding to the young chin line. But at thirty no neck should be left to follow its own bent, since its natural inclination is to slump in the muscles.

Is my "youth preserving" course of exercises I have included those for the neck that are best to prevent or remedy double chins. And, incidentally, the rest of the set is to preserve the youthful outline of the body. So, when one is working on exercises for the neck and chin, it were well to take a couple of extra minutes and do the complete set, which altogether takes not quite ten minutes. And in the exercises designed for other muscles of the body the neck is given additional muscle work to do. For these I would ask you to send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

What I want to impress upon you this morning is the fact that you must, if you want to have a good neck line at forty and in the ten years between, train your neck muscles so they will hold up your chin and prevent the shadow of years beneath it.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

JANE: THE WRINKLES AROUND THE EYES may be massaged with a good cold cream or skin food, the formula for which may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

MOTHER: IT IS POSSIBLE to remove some scars, but the work must be done by skin specialist of repute. An incompetent operator could do permanent damage to the face.

Elmer Finds "Ads," Music Poor Mixture

Program Is Spoiled, He Says, by Billboards.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

To complain or not to complain,

that's the question.

Anyhow, at 7:30 the dials were turned and turned, and finally remained at

WGN until 8. There was a mixed quartet that was good, a pianist who can both play and sing admirably, and this program was perhaps the best on the air. But there was advertising, repeated slightly at first, then it became more conspicuous until at the close I had an advertising brainstorm, at which I rebelled—rebelled further because it seemed a pity that fine talent like this should be so completely surrounded by inartistic advertising sign-boards. Perhaps the advertiser, rather than the station, is to blame. Anyhow, advertising like this cannot long endure in radio.

The KTW Currents and Edison radio programs are important broadcasts. But here we are presented with a different problem, it would seem.

These programs run from 8 to 10, and usually with the same talent, the so-called, contralto, tenor, baritone, pianist, being presented in invariable rotation. It would seem that a grouping of selections by the various artists would make for effectiveness and greater program strength.

This thought was made the more impressive when, upon turning to

WMAQ, 9:30, Barbara Wait, contralto, was heard in a group of seven songs.

A lovely voice, lovely songs, all a joy to hear and contemplate.

Then into the Salvation Army band concert, W-G-N, 9:40. Swivel chair concert; real music, neither deep nor light, but just right. If deep the listener must be, then let him apply the incoming tones and color combinations as preparatory exercises for a hearer appreciation of the more subtle tonal combinations given out by symphony orchestra.

Back to WMAQ, 9:30, making the acquaintance of the likeable, ingratiating voice of Mrs. Grace Adams.

The piano was quite as strong as the voice, and the effect was voice-piano-orchestra-like, with the brilliant, vibrant, yet soft, voice looming up with a beautiful appeal all its own.

To WGN, 9:40, the Uptown theater organ giving out the deepest kind of rolling tones, then the 50 piece orchestra coming in to fill blank in a wild and tumultuous piece, which turned out to be Goldmark's "Sakuntala."

We close with the terrific applause of the audience.

DURAND DOFFS

HIS CIVIES FOR

PRISON CLOTHES

Jack Durand, convicted of robbing the home of F. Edson White in Lake

Forest, stepped yesterday from his happy civilian suit into one of the regulation gray outfits given inmates of the Joliet penitentiary. Hereafter he is to be known as No. 219.

Durand, adopted son of Scott Durand, millionaire resident of Lake View, was taken to the prison yesterday morning by Sheriff Edwin Ahlstrom of Lake county. He is to serve three to twenty years for the robbery. On Monday he was sentenced, having decided not to appeal the verdict of a jury in the Lake County Circuit court.

The prisoner was accompanied by his foster father's secretary, Frank

Helm, who left him at the gates of the penitentiary. He was in good spirits on the ride from the Waukegan jail and reiterated his pledge to be a model inmate and to make good when his term is ended.

FAME IS "BROKE"

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 17.—(AP)—

F. M. (Borax) Smith, former Death

He said his debts at that time totaled $100,000.

The testimony was offered during trial of a suit instituted by L. Barr

MICHIGAN AND GOPHERS PUT HOPE IN LINES

Forwards Must Cover Aerial Attacks.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

When Michigan and Minnesota meet in Ann Arbor on Saturday in a game which will determine the team or teams entitled to the western conference football championship, the play of the lines and the style of play which Michigan will face for the first time this year.

Yost depends upon his forwards to give the necessary protection and delay for the successful execution of his aerial attack.

Coach Spears relies on his line for the help necessary to spring the various plays from his reverse formations, a style of play which Michigan will face for the first time this year.

If the lines hold in the expected manner, kicking will be an important factor, with each eleven on the alert for a fumble which may turn the tide of battle.

Aerial Attacks Certain.

Forward passing will be part of the attack used by both teams, Michigan especially. Yost apparently has reverted back to the old style of the long forward pass, while Spears' tones are generally over the scrimmage line and off to either wing. Both styles of passing are well protected. If Michigan's long passes are caught, the Yost eleven has gained as much ground as if the ball had been punted.

Yost will undoubtedly start the same team which faced Ohio State last week. Osterman and Flora will be at ends, with Edwards and Hawkins at tackles, and Blair and Lewis at guards, with Capt. Brown passing the ball from center, Benny Friedman will direct the drive, with Gilbert and Gregory as full backs and Molenda at full back.

Such is a strong combination, one of the best in the conference. With such an offensive front, plays of various types can be executed and tackles pulled back to smash into the line.

Yost Is Cautious.

Osterman and Flora will be on the receiving ends of forward passes, with Friedman hurling the oval. Benny was wide wild last Saturday, and should spend some time this week timing his starts a little more accurately. Gregory and Gilbert will also be used to make passes and Friedman will do the running, with the backs to drive into the line and dash off the tackles.

Yost will depend upon the kicking game inside the 40 yard line. The Minnesota team has shown such improvement with the playing of every man that it will reach a high point of development by week end. Coach Spears will take every advantage of this golden opportunity to win a Big Ten championship, the first since 1916.

Gopher Drives Shifty.

Coach Spears has been shifting his own in games and scrimmages to determine the positions for which they are best suited. He found a winning combination in the Iowa game, and practically the same team which faced Iowa will trot out on Perry field for the first kick Saturday. This team's offensive formations will be polished and a forward pass or trick play is tucked on the ends of some of the better plays.

Against Iowa, Minnesota flashed an aerial line and "Buck" Johnson, the full back, showed he is a true cracker of the first water, while Murray and Almqvist showed splendidly with their slants off the tackles and sweeping end runs. This pattern showed well in executing forward passes with the former tossing the ball and the latter making the tosses from difficult angles.

The attack was varied and had power. The Gophers were able to maintain their sustained drives, and recently made marches of 20 and 30 yards by use of the close and open attack. The line gave the backs excellent support.

Close Game Certain.

Andree and O'Brien appear to be the quarter back position to the satisfaction of the coach, while Almqvist and Murray cannot be improved in the half back position nor appearing at full back. Peplaw makes an excellent understanding for any of the backs, and the same is true of Andree and Vandusen.

Considering the game, from every angle, it should be close and hard fought unless either stampedes the other right at the start.

Minnesota is the favorite to win the game, but the Gopher coach will be entitled to the conference championship despite the fact they have played only three Big Ten games. Reports were made to the effect that the Northwestern and Northwestern will play in the championship.

THREATEN PROBE IF ARMY AND NAVY TILT STAYS EAST

Chicago Representatives Get Wilbur to Act.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—A powerful weapon—the possibility of congressional action—hitherto unmentioned in previous efforts, was brought into play today in an attempt to secure official approval of plans to stage the 1928 Army-Navy football game in Chicago.

Hints dropped to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur by Representative Fred A. Britten (Rep., Ill.), ranking Republican member of the house naval affairs committee, and Representative Martin B. Madden (Rep., Ill.), chairman of the house appropriations committee, that another refusal of the gridiron classic to the mid-west will crystallize a growing sentiment in that section for legislation barring intercollegiate activities in both academies and may react unfavorably on army and navy appropriations during the coming Congress, brought quick response.

Wilbur Promises Action.

Following his conference with the two Chicago congressmen, Secretary Wilbur announced that he would discuss the advisability of sending the two teams west next year with Admiral E. E. Elberie, chief of operations, and Rear Admiral L. M. Nulton, superintendent of the naval academy, under the agreement between the two services, the choice of the battleground, which alternates each year, falls to the Navy in 1928.

While pointing out that objections which have been relied on in the past to keep the games in the east can be urged with equal effect to prohibit competitive athletics in either institution, Mr. Britten emphasized the wisdom of sending the teams and the student corps into the middle west as a means of reviving pride in the army and navy.

Trip Held No Barrier.

Chicago seeks no profit from its Soldiers' field. Mr. Britten asserted. "If the objection that too much time will be required in traveling to Chicago is to be insisted upon," declared Mr. Britten, "the same reasoning will justify legislation prohibiting any competition in athletics which takes the students to other cities at any time. It is inconceivable that the trip to Chicago would be more a distraction from studies than trips to Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and other places are at present."

BIG GREEN TURNS DOWN COAST BID

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—A dispatch from Max Norton, graduate athletic manager at Dartmouth college, today stated that the college football team has declined and will not be in a position to accept the challenge of the Pacific Coast conference for the annual East-West game in the Rose bowl at Pasadena Jan. 1.

Captain Lowry May Quit N. U. for Job on Stage

Tim Lowry, captain of the Northwestern football squad, may withdraw from school to accept a vaudeville contract. Lowry yesterday was approached by a theatrical circuit with headquarters in Chicago and has the offer under consideration.

This is Lowry's third year on the Northwestern eleven. He is a senior in liberal arts and had planned to enter law school next fall. He has been active in campus theatricals.

BEST PREP TEAM IN COUNTRY?

This is the way Lake Forest academy will line up against St. John's Military academy Saturday: Mates, left end; Haddy, left tackle; Young, left guard; Stokes, center; Baker, right guard; Gansberg, right tackle; Calucci, right end; Straub, quarter back; Grimes, left half; Peterson, right half, and Smith, full back.

Lake Forest Academy Has Great Record

BY MORROW KRUM.

A football season bustling with upsets is almost over and Chicago teams have fared only moderately. The Maroons have been sunk and Northwestern has earned a claim to Big Ten leadership. But nowhere in this metropolitan district is there a gridiron team that has earned a right to national honors unless it is—The Lake Forest academy football squad.

Friends, faculty, student body, and alumni of the Lake Forest prep school insist that the team is entitled to the lofty honor of national prep champions.

Team Has Impressive Record.

The abundance of prep schools in America and the hundreds of games during a season almost preclude the selection of a national championship team. But the Lake Forest academy admirers have many reasons for their ambitions. These are some of them:

1. In seven games no enemy has escaped the Lake Forest goal line for any kind of a score.
2. In seven games opposing teams have made only 12 first downs.
3. In those seven games Lake Forest amassed 147 points.
4. Lake Forest defeated Princeton freshmen, which Tiger followers call the greatest frosh squad ever turned out at old Nassau.
5. Lake Forest defeated Notre Dame freshmen, another strong team, 6 to 0.
6. Lake Forest defeated Elgin college, 22 to 0.
7. Lake Forest defeated Marquette reserves, 21 to 0.
8. Lake Forest defeated Missouri Military academy, 64 to 0.

The back field is made up of speedsters and the line bulges with rugged, expertly coached players from end to end. A brilliant aerial game has been developed by Coach Ralph Jones and his assistants, Maj. J. K. Weir and Lloyd Bergen.

St. John's Coming Saturday.

On Saturday Lake Forest academy meets St. John's Military academy on the former's field. If the north shore team wins—who will say that it is not as good as any prep team in the country?

In the back field are four young giants whose names some days may be prominent in collegiate football. They are: Henry Peterson, right half back; Harold Smith, full back; Harvey Straub, captain and quarter back; and "Tup" Grimes, left half back. Coach Jones says there is no individual star.

Sande Signs to Ride in Tijuana State Events

Tia Juana, Mexico, Nov. 17.—Trainee John M. McKee, of the La Brea stable, a Los Angeles racing organization, owned by H. H. Cotton, announced today that he had engaged Jockey Earl Sande to ride the La Brea horse in state events at Tia Juana.

Profs Plug Five Players from Maroon Grid Squad

That grim reaper of college athletics, ineligibility, took its toll of grid men at the University of Chicago yesterday, when the Midway record announced that five players, three of whom are Maroon regulars, failed to meet the minimum scholastic barrier. The victims are Don Yelsley, regular end; Cam Baker, regular center; Stanley Rouse, half back; Togo Dygert, sophomore quarter, and George Scott, tackle.

The profs at the Midway have another day to go, and any men whose names appear on the delinquent list today also will be ineligible to meet Wisconsin in the last game of the season Saturday. The University of Chicago, unlike other Big Ten schools, requires that students, to remain eligible for public appearance, must maintain scholastic requirements in the middle of each quarter as well as at the end.

More May Fall Today.

There are several other lads on Coach A. A. Stagg's outfit who haven't burned any too much midnight oil, so that by night the Badgers may find the Midway professors still stronger allies. Announcement of these casualties was a hard blow to Chicago's team. Rouse's ineligibility is significant in view of the fact that he is not only a powerful runner but is the man upon whom Coach Stagg relies to do the punting when Graham Kernwein isn't in the game. Baker's place will be filled by Kenneth Rouse.

Several Subs for Yelsley.

Don Yelsley has a number of understudies, who, on the whole, are about as valuable to him as, except for his work against end running attacks. F. Clark and John McDonough will be prepped to take his place. Scott and Dygert will not weaken the team materially, though the former is a handy man to have around when Fred Hobbs or Capt. Bud Henderson, regular tackles, need rest or repairs.

The scholastic mortality rate among the athletes this year is unusually high, due to the fact that the men have not yet adjusted themselves to a new ruling on eligibility at the Midway.

RODGERS STUDY MAROONS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Onlookers were routed from Camp Randall field tonight as the Badger varsity went through another long drill on formations and then scrimmaged against a freshman eleven equipped with Chicago plays. Coach George Little is working his line firmly in hopes of stopping Stagg's famed hammering attack. With Capt. Polaski and Burrus at ends, Straub and Nelson at tackles, and Stipek at one guard, all of whom have seen service against Chicago, the Badgers have a set of forwards who will be primed to contest every inch. The Cardinal is aided considerably in its end week of practice by A. field that is dry for the first time in many weeks. Mild weather the last few days has almost completely dried out mud that was ankle deep during preparation for Michigan-Rice.

Trainers at the Midway were smiling last night. The many athletes who were incapacitated after the Dartmouth game all are rounding into shape rapidly, and all will be ready to do their bit against the Badgers Saturday—if the scholastic bugbear doesn't catch 'em during the next twelve hours.

Evanston Again Delays Permit for N. U. Stadium

Northwestern university's request that it be allowed to erect an athletic stadium to be forty feet higher than the zoning ordinance of Evanston allows has again been deferred by the Evanston zoning board of appeals. It was reported last night at a meeting of the city council. The board probably will meet again Tuesday evening, when final action may be taken.

Evanston officials declare that issuance of the permit, under which the university could go ahead with its program, is almost assured. The board hesitates to grant its permission to the university, however, fearing that it might thereby set a precedent for allowing the erection of other buildings not in accord with the provisions of the zoning ordinance.

Joesting Gains 503 Yards in 126 Line Bucks

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Chicago has its "Five Yard" McCarty and Minnesota offers "Four Yard" Joesting.

Joesting, the greatest plunging full back the Gophers have ever had, the rooters haven't forgotten Pudge Wyman of 1916.

Larin Solon, Carl Lidberg, and a host of other greats of the past. Herb Joesting really is entitled to the "Four Yard" moniker for a summary of his work, from the first game against North Dakota through the triumphant victory over Iowa, shows that his average yardage for the season totals that.

In seven games played this year, Joesting, who tips the scales at 195 pounds and hails from Owatonna, Minn., has gained 503 yards in 126 plays.

Never Tossed Back.

In all those 126 times of carrying the ball Joesting has yet to be thrown for a loss behind the line of scrimmage. No team has successfully found a way to stop his terrific bucking. Sometimes, he dives over the line, at other times he uses his powerful physique to gain ground. Hard as a rock, he has knocked out many a tackler who has stepped in front of him.

One gets an idea of the physical powers of this powerful Gopher smasher by the fact that he hasn't asked for time out once, and seems to be just as effective at the finish of the game as at the start.

And He Gets Better.

Joesting has been a trifle better each week. In the first game of the year against North Dakota, he made but 24 yards in 19 tries. Against Grinnell, he booted that total to 38 in 12 plays. He was a little better against Wisconsin with 102 yards in 21 plays, and against Iowa on Saturday, his total yardage was 115 in 18 attempts.

Joesting came near not being a Gopher this year. He failed to report Sept. 15 with the rest of the candidates staying at home to confine driving a sand truck. A week went by and no Joesting showed up for practice. Spears, having heard so much about the young man's possibilities, became disgusted and sent word to him that if he were not in uniform when the second week of practice started there would be no uniform for him.

Evanston Plans for Public Toboggan, 1,200 Feet Long

Evanston's city council has authorized the recreational department of the city to construct a public toboggan slide running along Lincoln street west from Ridge avenue. The slide will be 1,200 feet long, and will be erected immediately if funds are available.

A. A. U. BACKS NORMAN ROSS IN CHANNEL SWIM

Sportsmen Pledge $5,000 to Finance Venture.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Norman A. Ross, well known swimmer of the Detroit Athletic club, will attempt to swim the English channel next year, it was announced here today at the closing session of the A. A. U. convention.

Five thousand dollars has been pledged by leading figures in the sports world to finance the venture. The sportsmen intend to make the swim in a single attempt.

Other officers named were: William P. Humphries, San Francisco, first vice president; Avery Brundage, Chicago, second vice president; William J. Kenny, Boston, third vice president; Judge Fred L. Hoffman, Cincinnati, fourth vice president; and Fred L. Hoffman, New York City, secretary-treasurer.

Foreigners Invited.

International athletes were placed on a plane higher than ever before. The close relationship was evidenced by the granting of permission to Jackson V. Scholze and Lloyd Hahn to invade Australia next summer to meet the best of the Antipodes.

Would Help Father.

"You don't know what a tough place I'm in. Everybody's saying this and that about me turning pro and throwing down Illinois. I don't know what to do. I've tried to keep clean on this amateur stuff. I haven't taken a cent from anybody and I haven't signed a contract with any one. I understand several movie firms want him. They say real estate firms in Florida will pay me a lot of money to go down there and sell lots. And you know the talk about playing pro football."

Would Help Father.

"Folks have said I got money for playing football at Illinois. That's all the bunk. The only money I got I earned working on an ice wagon in the summer and the rest my father has given me."

NEW YORK CLUB GETS 1926 PRO GOLF TOURNEY

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The Professional Golfers' association today voted to hold its 1926 championship tournament at the Ballymore Country club, Garden City, N. Y., and to increase the prize money for the event from $5,000 to $10,000.

Doubling of the amount of prize money, it was announced by the association, results from a desire to provide prizes for all of the 64 qualifiers.

The tournament will be held either the second or the third week in September.

RED WORRIES, BUT CLINGS TO ILLINOIS TEAM

Dashes to Wheaton to See His Dad.

BY DON MAXWELL.

Red Grange was talking. The Illinois star, heralded as one of the gridiron finds of this generation, was answered as best he could the innumerable rumors, charges, and denials of what he's planning to do.

He gave his answer last night as he talked with Tribune men at a table in a little restaurant on the main street of Wheaton, Red's home town. He said it was the only interview he had given fully explaining his attitude toward commercializing the football ability which has won him so much fame.

Called on Carpet.

The interview came as a climax to a day of exciting incidents in Red's life. The excitement began when Coach Zuppke and George Huff, director of athletics at Illinois, called Grange on the carpet. They demanded to know if he had turned pro. If he had signed up with any team. News paper rumor had it that they had demanded his football suit, if he had.

The university's official cognizance of the rumors concerning its star footballer, gained much momentum that evening after Red had satisfied his coach and Huff that he had not done a thing to hurt his amateur standing. President Kinley of Illinois stepped in and publicly stated that he must oust Grange from the university. That threat came after Red, at the advice of Zuppke, had left for Wheaton to talk things over with his father. Lyle Grange, deputy sheriff of DuPage county, President Kinley was quoted as saying action would result if Red did not attend classes at Urbana today.

Red drove to Wheaton. In the evening he went calling on some of his town friends. When The Tribune reporters arrived at the little home where the restaurant where Deputy Sheriff J. J. Grange, his brother, Garland, lives, Red was still out.

Dad Puts It Up to Red.

He came in, while his father was explaining that what Red did was up to his son. "He's a mighty fine boy, Red is, and I'm going to leave this all to him," the father said.

"The newspapers are full of stories about what you're going to do," the reporters told Red. "What have you got to tell us?"

"I'll tell you," he answered. "If you'll go down to the restaurant with me, I'm half starved."

And that was the end of the interview. "You don't know what a tough place I'm in. Everybody's saying this and that about me turning pro and throwing down Illinois. I don't know what to do. I've tried to keep clean on this amateur stuff. I haven't taken a cent from anybody and I haven't signed a contract with any one. I understand several movie firms want him. Red Worries, But Clings to Illinois Team

Red Grange was talking. The Illinois star, heralded as one of the gridiron finds of this generation, was answered as best he could the innumerable rumors, charges, and denials of what he's planning to do. He gave his answer last night as he talked with Tribune men at a table in a little restaurant on the main street of Wheaton, Red's home town. He said it was the only interview he had given fully explaining his attitude toward commercializing the football ability which has won him so much fame.

In the open while a half dozen folks at nearby tables listened in.

Red's brother Garland sat down at the table with him.

"If I eat it on you, Red," Garland said. "I'm broke."

"Go ahead, kid," Red told him. "I can stand it."

The talk drew around to football games and Red spoke of the bad weather under which most of the Illinois games have been played this season.

"Playing on a muddy field isn't football," he said. "It's just luck and punting. We sure got the breaks in that Chicago game. That's why we won. We got the breaks. I was glad to see Kernwein played a good game against Dartmouth. He's a dandy player. And he had a lot of tough luck against Illinois."

Plans to Graduate.

"What are you going to do after you leave college?" some one asked.

"Guess I'll go into manufacturing business," he said. "I've been taking a lot of economics at school. That's another thing. Whether I play pro football or not, I'll go back to school this year or next and work out my diploma. It would look like I had been wasting three years if I didn't get my diploma."

Some one suggested that Red might make money in salesmanship, capitalizing on his gridiron fame.

"O, I don't know," Red said. "I don't think I'd go so good at selling stuff. I haven't got the nerve."

Indication that Grassie probably will sign up to play pro football rather than accept some of the other offers, movie, selling Florida land, or such, was given when he said he liked to play football and that he guessed that was his forte.

May Play Thanksgiving.

"There's one thing you can count on," he said. "And that's that I'm not going to play anywhere on Sunday after that Ohio game. Two games in a row is too much. Even playing half a game is too much. You may not feel it at the time, but you sure feel it the day after. I guess Thanksgiving day would be about the first I could play."

After Red had finished his tomatoes the party walked out to the street, where a stranger stepped up.

"I'm Mr. So and So," he said. "I'm interested in a health sanitarium. I'll pay you $100 an hour for your spare time."

"Well, I could use some of that $100 right now," Red grinned as he walked away.

That's only a sample of the way offers have been made to this football star. They come in the mail and they come by wire. And now are trying to get interviews with him to tell how he can make a million.

But he's turning them all down—until Saturday.

That's Red Grange's story.

TURTLE GOES TO WINNER OF OHIO, ILLINOIS GAME

Wibuk Getting Ready for Trip to Columbus.

Columbus, O., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Michigan and Minnesota may have their little brown jug and Purdue and Indiana may have their old raven mascot, but the prize in Saturday's Ohio-Illinois clash will be a venerable turtle christened "Turtle." This living trophy in Illinois' possession for the last year may stay in Columbus, even though the Zuppke lads win, for the present custodians claim the turtle is more of a liability than an asset.

Following today's workout, the team's physicians said the squad would be in no better physical condition than when they met Michigan Nov. 14. Karow, full back; Meyers, left tackle; and Klein, center, were badly bumped in the Ann Arbor game. Rowan, right end, has been taking only light workouts. It is likely that Gorrell will alternate with him Saturday.

MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The regulars, having rested yesterday, today plunged into three days of intensive training for Saturday's championship game between the Gophers and Michigan at Ann Arbor. Air lights and plenty of service before the athletes went to the showers. Dr. Spears realizes better than any one else that his team's only chance Saturday lies in stopping Michigan's aerial attack, and he is overhauling his offense in an effort to stop that greatest threat. That Conrad Cooper will be available for center after certain today when he held down his regular position with the second team in running drills. Mike Gary also got into the signal drill, but he was still hobbling badly. Capt. Ascher wasn't even in uniform tonight. Dr. Spears has three different teams using Michigan plays this week, two freshmen units and one made up of scrubs and twelfth-graders. They take turns going at top speed against the variety. Roger Wheeler, end, has had cold and wasn't out for practice today.

PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Larry DeLoach, Jack Spencer, Melvin Taube, and Dutch Koransky, all stellar members of the Purdue football team, remained on the sidelines this afternoon while their mates worked against the yearling gridmen in a long scrimmage. They emerged from the fracas with the Wild Cats somewhat crippled, and Coach Belin ordered them to take things easy this week. Strengthening the attack that must be developed before Saturday's encounter with the Indiana eleven at Bloomington, Coach Belin had his pupils running with the ball, punting, deep kicking, and heaving passes, with the strong freshman eleven offering stiff opposition during the entire affair. They worked at quarter back in place of Taube and Wilson replaced Koransky at full back during the workout.

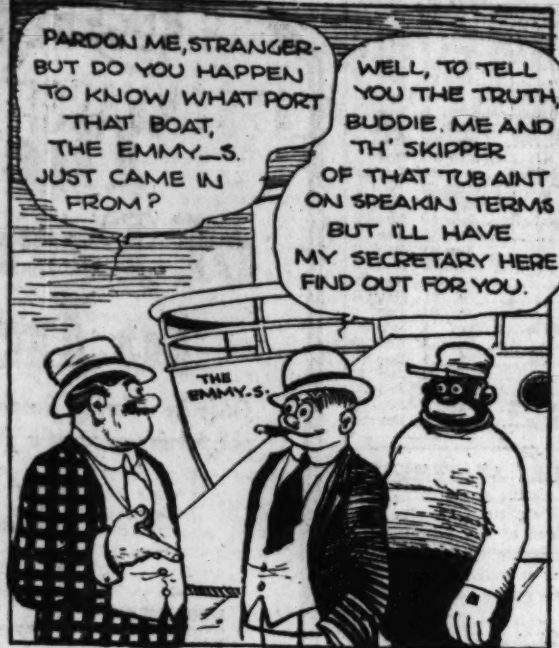

INDIANA.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Coach "Navy Bill" Ingram started the final tapering off process with the Indiana team today for the homecoming game with Purdue Saturday. Starting unexpected accidents in practice, the Crimson team will face the upstarters in road shape with the exception of Right Guard Bishop, who probably will not be able to start. Briner, who took his place Saturday, played a good game against Rose Poly. Overconfidence is not bothering Indiana. The players realize that the Purdue ruse always is a bitter struggle in which dope counts for naught.

Kieckhefer Divides

Cue Series with Reisel

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Angie Kieckhefer of Chicago got an even break with Otto Reisel today in the National Three cushion games. After losing the first match, 10 to 20, in 56 innings, Kieckhefer won in the night contest and won, 10 to 24, in 46 sessions. Reisel's 5 was the highest run of the afternoon. Both made 6 at night.

Hawks Leave for Coast; Carry Iowa Water to Drink

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Cowbells banged their last brazen boom tonight as more than a thousand Iowa football fans saw the Cowboys and the Ploowboy and Gurnahoe Griffen and 25 other Hawks board the football special and ride westward toward the frontier. A workout on Iowa field preceded the embarkation for southern California, and was cut short to prepare for departure.

Every precaution has been taken to insure an Iowa team in good physical condition. Iowa City water is being carried in ten gallon cans and will be used throughout the week. The first workout will be held tomorrow at either McPherson or Inman, Kan., and followed the next day by a drill on the banks of the Rio Grande.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL AS WORK.

FOOTBALL has reached its greatest height of public interest. It is affording pleasure to more people than ever before.

At the same time that the gridiron game is filling immense stadiums and causing more and larger stadiums to be built it is actually becoming harder work for the players themselves.

This thought is borne out by a letter sent the Wake on another subject by the mother of a leading Big Ten player.

She says: "The game of football as it is being played today has lost its sport for the players. It is nothing now but a grind, and most of them are glad when it is over. It seems as if it is the alumni who get the real kick out of the game."

The Wake thinks this arraignment is largely true. Most of the players with whom we come in contact are "sour" long before the season ends, unless, perchance, they happen to be upon one of the few winning teams.

Why is this? Largely because public interest has so stressed desire for victory that mistakes and errors on the field, followed by inevitable criticism, prey upon the players' minds. The burden of responsibility is heavy.

President Hopkins at the Dartmouth dinner brought out the same point, saying: "We have had boys brood over their errors on the playing field until they lost interest in college and dropped out of school."

We have no remedy to suggest. No boy of the type who tries for football teams will give up the game simply because it is hard work or because of criticism.

Our thought in discussing the subject is that those of us with second guess propensities be more lenient in our criticism, that we recognize that these boys—they are only boys—are not the only ones who make errors of judgment in emergencies.

This Wake is Conducted by Harvey T. Woodruff.

Help! Help!

ARGENTINE CROP NEWS SENDS ALL WHEAT PRICES UP

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A radical change in the character of the crop reports from Argentina brought in a wave of general buying which carried all wheat deliveries up to a new high on the present movement. December sold at $1.84 1/2 and May at $1.54 1/2, with the entire wall toward the top at net gains of 3 1/2 c.

May leading. December closed at $1.87 1/2 to 1.87 3/4, or 3 1/2 c over May, against 3 1/2 c on Monday. December corn was weak and in heavy decline, futures 14 to 14 1/2 c higher. Cattle were unchanged to 1/2 c lower and hogs 1/2 c higher.

Foreigners Take Profit. Foreign markets showed relatively more strength than Chicago, with Liverpool 1927 higher and Winnipeg 1/2 c higher at the last. Heavy buying attributed to seaboard shorts was a factor in advancing the latter market, as was the removal of barbed wire from the United Kingdom and the continent came in as big buyers of wheat, taking around 2,000,000 bu. largely Manitoba, in all positions, the late wheat was in heavy demand.

December Corn Weak. Favorable weather over the corn belt had a depressing effect on the December, which broke to 75 c, or 1/2 c under Monday's finish. It showed limited rally, however, closing 1/2 c under May, against 1/2 c over a few days ago. The late wheat in May was due to sympathy with wheat and in heavy decline, however. Cash basis was earlier, with receipts 107 cars. Country offerings continue small. Oats had a range of 1/2 c to 1/2 c lower.

Cash interests sold November and December hogs and cattle and dropped to the over the future, compared with sales at 50 c over a week ago. Shorts were the best buyers. The finish was at net losses of 10 1/2 c. Hogs were unchanged to 1/2 c lower, and cattle unchanged. Prices follow:
